The Rise In Life of TAFT The Man of The Hour

A Big Man Physically and Mentally, Who Has Made His Mark as Lawyer, Judge, Diplomat, Globe Trotter and Statesman — Few Men In American History Have Been So Notably Identified With Great Events as He.

By ROBERTS [illegible]

[Copyright, 1908, by Roberts [illegible]]

WILLIAM H. TAFT, GLOBE TROTTER.

Few men in American history have been so notably identified with big events as William Howard Taft. If there is such a thing as a born public man, this Cincinnatian is one. It is popular to call Mr Taft big. Physically he is a heavyweight, a three hundred pounder, standing six feet two inches tall. Mentally also he is a big man. The salient facts in his career prove this.

Unlike most men of presidential aspirations, Mr. Taft never knew what it was to be poor. He was not born rich, but he was born well to do. There is no log cabin period in his life nor in the lives of his ancestors for generations back. His paternal grandfather was a Vermont lawyer of distinction. His father was Judge Alphonso Taft of Cincinnati, who served for brief periods as secretary of war and attorney general in the cabinet of President Grant and afterward was minister to Austria and to Russia.

William H. Taft was born in Cincinnati Sept. 15, 1857. He grew up in his native city and was prepared for college in the local schools. His mother was a highly educated woman. It is said that the Taft family always made a specialty of education. The judge and his wife determined that all their children should receive the best scholastic training that was to be had. William was a diligent student who mastered his studies by dint of hard digging. He entered Yale in 1874 and was graduated four years later with second honors in a class of 121 members. In college he was known as a clean, manly youth, always ready to take part in athletics, but never neglecting his studies for sport. Classmates declare that Bill Taft was the most popular fellow in the class of 1878.

The young man returned to Cincinnati with his diploma and passed through a law school. In 1880 he was admitted to the bar. While waiting for clients he worked as a court reporter on the Cincinnati Times and later on the Cincinnati Commercial. The prosecuting attorney met the young lawyer reporter and took such a fancy to him that he appointed Taft his assistant. That was in 1881. Not long afterward the young man was appointed collector of internal revenue for his district. During the administration of President Harrison the Cincinnati lawyer made his first official appearance in Washington as solicitor general for the United States. President Harrison appointed him in 1892 a judge of the United States circuit court. Prior to this Mr. Taft had sat on the bench of the superior court in Ohio, first through appointment by Governor Foraker, now United States senator, and later by election.

Though in public office for about fifteen years, up to the year 1900 William H. Taft had won only a local reputation. To be sure, he was widely and favorably known among lawyers as a judge possessing in an unusual measure the judicial mind, but he was in no sense a national figure. He had ambitions toward the supreme bench, and there were eminent men who predicted that Taft some day would sit in that tribunal.

In 1898 the war with Spain threw into American possession the Philippine Islands. President McKinley and his cabinet passed anxious hours in discussion of the problem "What shall we do with the Philippines?" When finally it was determined to create a commission to organize civil government in the islands, then in revolt and under military rule, the president looked about for a man big and broad and deep enough to hold the chairmanship of that body. "Big Bill" Taft of his own state was recommended as the very man for the place. Judge Taft was called to Washington. He frankly told the president that he had not

WHOLESALE LYNCHING

Nine Negroes Met Death at Hands of a Mob

RACE CLASH IMMINENT

White Population in Texas Seeks to Avenge the Murder of Two Other White Men.

BOTH SIDES ARE ARMED FOR FIGHT.

Huston, Texas, June 22nd. During last night nine negroes met death at the hands of a mob in the vicinity of Hemphill in Sabine county. Today both races secured arms and the tension is such tonight that a race clash appears imminent.

The lynching followed the killing of two white men by negroes. Two weeks ago Hugh Dean and several other white men visited a negro church and school house where a dance was in progress, presumably in quest of liquor, it being the custom of some of the negroes to sell whiskey during the progress of such affairs. During the evening Dean was killed and six negroes were held for the killing. At the preliminary examination the evidence tended to show that the plot was formed at the dance to kill Dean,

Saturday last Aaron A. Johnson a prominent farmer was assassinated, while seated at the dining table with his wife and child, the bullet being fired through a window. For this crime Perry Price a negro, was arrested and, it is stated confessed, implicating Robert White a relative of one of the negroes held for Dean's murder. Price declared he was offered $5 to kill Johnson.

Then followed the forming of the mob last night, the overpowering of the jailer at Hemphill, and the lynching of the six negroes held for the murder of Dean. Five were hanged to the same tree while another attempted to escape and was shot to death.

Later in the night William McCoy, another negro was shot and killed while standing at the rear of the Johnson home, and this morning the bodies of two more negroes were found in the creek bottom. Wright, the negro who confessed to killing Johnson, and the man he implicated, were taken to Beaumont for safe keeping under guard of the military company of San Augustine.

Sabine is situated in the most remote section of the state, with a lack of railroad and telegraph facilities, and thickly timbered.

Birthday Surprise.

On Thursday evening last Miss Nellie Solt, one of the employes of the American Union Telephone company was agreeably surprised at her home on South street it being the anniversary of her birthday. When Miss Solt returned from the office that evening she found about 25 of her young friends had assembled there to celebrate the occasion. The evening was very pleasantly spent in games and song, Messrs. Latham and Pulen being present and entertained the company with their delightful music. Miss Marie Gehrety played the piano very skilfully for the singing. The Solt home was very prettily decorated with roses to add to the pleasures of the evening. At the proper time delicious refreshments were served and the table presented a very beautiful appearance. The evening was one highly enjoyed by all present and departing the guests wished Miss Solt many happy returns of the day.

Milton vs. Watsontown.

Owing to the desire on the part of the Clinton—Centre leagues to play their games on the Fourth as scheduled the Snow Shoe Howard games will not be played at Hecla on the Fourth at the Undine picnic. It is the desire of the citizens of Snow Shoe that their team remain at home on that day on account of the distance to Hecla park the team has acceded to their wishes. The Undine boys have, however, succeeded in scheduling a double header on that day between the strong teams of Watsontown and Milton. One game will be played in the forenoon at 10:30 o'clock and the other in the afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.

SLASHED HIS THROAT WITH RAZOR.

Despondent and Discouraged Over His Lot John M. Herr Commits Suicide.

John M. Herr, a veteran of the Civil war who resides near the Hubbard bridge about three miles west of Beech Creek in this county committed suicide Sunday morning by cutting his throat from ear to ear. Owing to ill health and domestic trouble the unfortunate man had been despondent for some time. His wife became demented some years ago and was taken to the Danville asylum for treatment, as her condition improved greatly she was returned to her home. In a short time her mind again became affected which caused the hard working husband to become despondent and discouraged. All his time was occupied in caring for his wife and the poor overseers were slow in reliving him of the burden by again sending the woman to the asylum. At this time he threatened to go west to his daughter and he was told that his pension would be attached and the money used in supporting his wife. Being unable to leave his wife he intimated at times that he would furnish some startling news for the papers, which he did Sunday morning.

About 5:30 o'clock he started from the house to go for a pail of water from a spring about 100 yards distant. According to the trail of blood leading to the spring it is thought that he committed the rash act a short distance beyond the house, at a point where a pool of blood was found. He then continued his journey to the spring, procured the water and started toward the house but evidently sank from exhaustion after going about 20 feet.

On missing the father, one of the members of the family began a search for him, and at 7 o'clock found his body along the path leading to the spring. He had a ghastly wound in the neck, the cut extending from ear, to ear and severing the jugular vein. Near the body stood the bucket containing the water into which the man's hat had dropped as he fell to the ground.

Justice of the Peace Milford Pletcher of Blanchard, held an inquest, being assisted in the examination of the body by Dr. McEntire of Howard The jury rendered a verdict to the effect that the deceased came to his death by his own hand in the manner described above.

Deceased was aged 71 years, and leaves his unfortunate wife, five sons and one daughter, the majority of whom reside at distant points.

Mr. Herr was born and raised in Nittay valley and for years resided at Salona, where he is well known. He was a shoemaker by occupation but of late years owing to becoming infirm he led a retired life. During the war he served in the 45th regiment, Company D. of the Pennsylvania Volunteer Infantry, and was a good and faithful soldier. During his service he received a gunshot wound in the head from which it is thought he never fully recovered. After the close of the rebellion he located in the neighborhood where he took his life, and was well respected by all who knew him.

The funeral was conducted in the M. E. church this forenoon at 11 o'clock. Interment was made in the Clark cemetery.

Y. M. C. A. Bible Conference.

The annual Bible conference of the state Young Men's Christian Association will be held in the auditorium at Eagles Mere July 2 to 11. This conference is one of the features of the association that is always looked forward to by many of the boys. Although it is a Bible conference it is also an outing for those who attended as they enjoy all the pleasures of this famous resort. The deeper purposes of the conference are to intensify actual study of the word of God, to enrich christian experience and to train for more active service.

Among the speakers and leaders secured are James M. Gray, D. D., of Chicago; Thomas R. Thoburn, D. D. of Erie; Dr. A. T. Clay, of the University of Pennsylvania; Rev. Charles E. Hurlburt, of the Africa Inland mission, and Evangelist Chester Birch, the accomplished musician, who will have charge of the singing.

The men who attend this conference devote the time between sessions to rowing, bathing, fishing, hiking and many other outdoor exercises. Excursions are usually sold on the railroads and special rates are given at the hotels, and you will find that this outing can be taken cheaper than anywhere else. For further information consult the general secretary at the Y. M. C. A. rooms as to excursion rates and hotel charges.

KILLED WIFE; SHOT SELF

Frenchville is the Scene of Double Tragedy on Sunday.

WIFE MADE A BANNER

Husband Then Shot Her and Made a Desperate Attempt to End Own Life. Condition Grave.

PRISONER TAKEN TO COUNTY HOME

The little village of Frenchville, over in Clearfield county, is all astir over a horrible tragedy which took place on Sunday.

Abel Huganey, a representative of one of the old families of that vicinity, aged about 32 years and a lumberman by occupation, has recently been employed on the Belloute job on Moosquito creek. Because of being employed by Mr. Belloute, Huganey recently moved into a small house on the former's farm, just outside of Frenchville. The change, evidently, was not very pleasing to his wife. At any rate he and his wife had a quarrel Sunday morning, presumably over this matter, and in his anger he threatened to shoot his wife. She, standing in the open doorway, dared him to carry out his threat. She had scarcely gotten out the words until he grabbed his rifle and shot her in the back, killing her instantly. To make sure of his work he fired the second shot into her body lying prostrate on the ground outside the door. He then reversed the gun, put the muzzle to his own breast and fired a shot that knocked him over. The bullet not proving fatal, he reloaded his gun and shot again through the other breast. He then lay down beside the body of his wife, where he was soon found by neighbors. His condition was serious, but not so bad but that officers were able to convey him to the Clearfield County Home where he is being cared for under guard.

It was thought Monday that Huganey would recover, the bullets being steel and going through the body, likely to be very much in his favor, but a later report states that more serious complications have setin and he may die.

One little five-year-old boy survives.

Making a Name for Himself.

Of all the young men who have gone forth from Bellefonte to the different colleges and schools of our country probably none have made a better record than Ward Fleming, only son of Mr. and Mrs. Wilson I. Fleming, of this city As he is naturally modest and unassuming it is only by chance that we learned of his success. Ward was one of the youngest graduates ever turned out of the Bellefonte High School where he graduated with honors. After two years at the Academy he entered Haverford College where he graduated with a B A. degree. He then took a two years course in the University of Pennsylvania Law School. Leaving the U. of P. law school with honors he went to Pittsburg where he spent a year in the Pittsburg Law School capturing a B. L. degree.

Last Saturday he was admitted to the bar of Allegheny county after passing one of the stiffest examinations imaginable before the Allegheny Bar Association.

Mr. Fleming will not locate in Pittsburg permanently and has not fully decided upon his plans for the future. In view of the splendid record already made we feel sure that his future is bright with the promise of a successful and honorable career.

Paper Companies Fined

In the United States circuit court Judge Hough, of New York has imposed fines of $2000 each upon the 24 wrapping paper manufacturers composing the Fibre and Manila association, which pleaded guilty to violating the trust provisions of the Sherman act. The companies were indicted by the grand jury on Tuesday of last week, but the indictment was not made public until Friday when the companies entered a plea of guilty. These fines were light owing to extenuating circumstances and the association has dissolved. Among the companies fined were three from Pennsylvania, viz: Analomink Paper company, North Water Gap; Bayles Pulp & Paper company, Austin and the York Haven Paper company, York Haven:

MACCABEES STILL BUSY.

Officers Installed on Wednesday Evening and Add Four Members to Roll

The Bellefonte Tent No. 100 Knights of the Maccabees held an important meeting on Wednesday evening in which considerable business was transacted. Deputy Great Commander Bush installed the following officers elect for the ensuing term: Past Commander, Laird Curtin; Commander, Thos. Mitchell; Lieut. Com., Harry Gehret; Chaplain, Chas. Moran; Sergeant, Samuel N. Ray; Record Keeper, Geo. T. Bush; Master at Arms, Curtin C. Taylor; 1st Master of the Guard, Samuel T. Cherry; 2nd M. of Guard, Arthur Brown; Sentinel, Harry Gross; Picket, R. S. Brouse.

Four members were admitted which makes a total of seven new members for the month of June added to the list and which makes a total of forty-seven being added to the membership since the first of November last. A few have been lost on account of deaths, removal from town, and the present times many being out of work but the growth is commendable despite all that. They have fine property and rooms and a hustling active membership and are out of debt but the rooms are not furnished completely as they hope to have soon. The new ritual is very fine and the work of the same is attracting considerable interest.

About fifty attended services at the Evangelical Church Sunday last when Brother Sir Knight Hower, who is a member of the order, preached a very fine sermon on the principles of the order.

Quigley—Hess.

Thursday evening at 6:30 o'clock George F. Hess, of Beech Creek and Miss Mary S. Quigley, of Blanchard were married in the Presbyterian church at Beech Creek by the pastor, Rev. W. M. Grant. The matron of honor was Mrs. William B. Horne, of Yonkers, N. Y., a sister of the bride and the bridesmaids were Miss Susan G. Quigley, of Pittsburg, a sister of the bride, and Miss Ella M. Hess of Beech Creek, a sister of the groom. The bride was given away by her father, Herbert N. Moore of Pittsburg was the best man. The ushers were Silas M. Pomeroy of Harrisburg; Edwin G. Leyden, of Jersey Shore, Harry H. Fearon and George S. Furst, of Beech Creek, Henry C. Quigley, of Bellefonte, and J. Edwin Quigley of Pittsburg The music was furnished by the Germania orchestra, of Lock Haven. There was a large number of friends present to witness the ceremony. Following the wedding a reception was given at the home of the bride in Blanchard.

The bride is the accomplished young daughter of Captain and Mrs. James A. Quigley, of Blanchard and the groom is a son of George D. Hess, of Beech Creek and is engaged in business with his father. Following the wedding festivities the bride and groom left on a wedding trip and upon their return will reside in Beech Creek.

Kling—Cain.

Miss Goldie Cain, of this place and Mr. Guyer Samuel Kling, of Altoona, were married on Thursday afternoon at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Alice Cain, on North Potter street. Miss Olivia Cain, a sister of the bride, acted as bridesmaid and Roy Stover was the groomsman. Amid the pretty decorations of blooming flowers, evergreens and plants Rev. A. Davidson, a former pastor of the United Brethren church, said the words that made them man and wife. The ceremony was witnessed by a number of friends from Bellefonte and Altoona and the usual wedding dinner was served. The young couple departed Thursday evening on a wedding trip and on their return will locate in Altoona where the groom is employed as a machinist in the P. R. R. shops. The bride is a graduate of the Bellefonte high school and has a host of friends who will join in wishing her a happy voyage over the sea of matrimony.

Derr—Uzzle.

Melvin L. Derr, of Tyrone and Miss Josephine Uzzle of Snow Shoe, were married on Monday June 15 at the parsonage of the Thirteenth street Methodist church in Philadelphia by Rev. George Burris, Ph. D. After taking a short honeymoon trip of the eastern cities they returned to Tyrone where they will reside. The bride is a daughter of John G. Uzzle, the popular Snow Shoe landlord, and the groom is a fireman on the Torone division of the Pennsylvania railroad

Redney and the Lady.

By FRANK HOWE.

Copyrighted, 1908, by Associated Literary Press.

Archibald Harris, better known to his one time friends as "Redney," in graceful allusion to his brightly colored thatch of hair, gazed disconsolately into the shop window while the warm, enticing odor of freshly baked bread came through the grating beneath the window.

He was debating whether to buy a loaf of bread and make an evening meal or to save his sole remaining dime for a bed after he should have had a cup of coffee and a thick slice of bread on the "bread line." The bread line did not open until 1 o'clock, and Redney decided in favor of supper immediately. He was used to sleeping in the open, but he was unused to going hungry.

He half turned to go inside the bakery when his attention was attracted to a girl who had joined him before the plate glass. She was not uncomely, in spite of a certain shabbiness, and something seemed to stamp her as one of the homeless. With quick sympathy Redney turned to her.

"You hungry, too, sister?" he demanded.

The girl sprang back at the sound of his voice and made as though to move on, but the "too" was a common bond of sympathy, and she nodded silently.

"Ain't had nothin' since last night," she affirmed. "The landlady threw me out because I owe three weeks' board, and there ain't a chance in town for a job."

"Come on in," he invited, leading the way to the door. The girl stood silent while Redney purchased a loaf of bread and half a dozen cakes, depositing the last dime. Then he led the way to one of the small parks and divided the loaf and the cakes with her.

Both devoured the bread ravenously, and neither spoke until the last crumb of cake had been eaten. Then the girl turned to her companion.

"YOU BET I AIN'T," WAS THE FERVENT ASSURANCE.

"You're all to the good," she declared gratefully. "What you goin' t' do now?"

"Nothin'! There's nothin' to do," he declared, with light humor. "No one seems to want me for odd jobs, and there's no chance for my regular job in these parts."

"What's that?" she demanded.

"Ridin' range," he answered, with a laugh, "tendin' cows."

"You are a cowboy!" she gasped. "You a real cowboy?"

Redney nodded his head.

"I guess that's what," he assented.

"You c'n throw a lasso?" she demanded, her eyes growing bright. Redney nodded again.

"I c'n fix you up," she declared. "Got your lassos?"

"They're at the place where I bunked last night," he assented. "I came east to try the theaters, but the theater fellows say they're all booked up, which means that they are some few shy of jobs for me. I'd go back west, but I'm busted."

"I'll show you," declared the girl. "You know amateur nights?"

Redney shook his head.

"That's a strange brand," he said.

"It's for the yaps," explained the girl. "They have 'em at all the theaters. If you're the biggest hit you get $10. It's a cinch if there's a girl with you. I'll let you throw the ropes at me, and we'll cop the coin."

"Where do they have 'em?" asked Redney, growing interested.

"All over." The girl made a sweeping gesture with her hand to indicate the scope. "They're all the go now. They have to have 'em on different nights because there ain't enough amateurs to go around. We can play the lot. Come on and get your things, and I'll show you."

She sprang to her feet, and Redney followed after. He was doubtful of ultimate success, but he was willing to do anything that would permit him to enjoy the cheering society of the girl for a couple of hours.

They went over to the lodging house where Redney had stored the valise containing his spare shirt and his ropes, all that was left of the outfit he had brought east. The rest had gone to the pawnshops.

The good natured clerk permitted them to go into the empty dormitory to practice, and presently the girl dragged him toward a theater whose big sign entreated the passerby not to forget that it was amateur night.

After a short parley with a gray coated special officer in the lobby they found themselves herded in a cellar under the auditorium with an odd assortment of "talent."

It was a long wait before the amateurs were marshaled upon the stage, but at last the chance came, and with the girl's final admonition to do his best ringing in his ears Redney followed her out upon the stage.

The lights bothered him a bit, and he was glad that he was not obliged to talk above the babel of noises, but the catcalls and hoots elicited by his appearance died down when it was seen that he was able to do strange things with a rope. When at last the turn was ended and he sought the comparative dusk of the wings the girl's warm "You done great" thrilled him with satisfaction.

Then the amateurs all lined up on the stage, and there was a lot of applause, and the stage manager thrust ten one-dollar bills into his trembling hands, and, with the girl's prompting, Redney bobbed his head in thanks and backed off the stage.

In the wings a man with a fur lined coat was waiting to lead him over into a corner. Presently Redney beckoned for the girl.

"This is the manager of the show that's here this week," Redney explained. "He says he'll give us jobs with the show. You get eighteen in the chorus, and I get thirty-five for doin' my rope act. I'll give you five to help me out. Want to come?"

"Do I?" echoed the girl. "Watcher want t' ask me for? Why didn't yer say 'Yes' before he changed his mind?"

"I'm not going to change my mind," assured the fur coated one, with a laugh. "Come around at 11 tomorrow."

He turned away, leaving the two face to face. Redney looked into the girl's glowing eyes. There lay knowledge of privation and of toil and of the ways of the world, but they met his fearlessly, and Redney was satisfied.

"Thirty-five and eighteen makes fifty-three," he said softly. "Wouldn't you rather share the fifty-three with me, Bess?"

"Sure," was her assent, half laughing, half bashful. "The manager's eighteen and your five makes twenty-three, and that ain't no sort o' luck. Besides," she added, as her face grew tender, "you're a white boy, kiddoo, an' yer ain't ever goin' t' be ashamed o' yer wife."

"You bet I ain't," was the fervent assurance. "I knew it was you I wanted out there in front of the bakery. Let's go and get somethin' real to eat, cow meat and coffee and sweet truck."

"Just as you say," Bess assented meekly. "It's up to you now." And she followed him toward the stairs up which they had climbed an hour before with such different feelings.

Bounced Through.

Sergeant Wilkins once defended a breach of promise case for a singularly ugly little man, which case he told the defendant, after reading his brief, must be "bounced" through. And the sergeant did bounce it through.

"Gentlemen of the jury," he said at the close of a most eloquent speech, "you've heard the evidence for the plaintiff, and, gentlemen of the jury, you have admired that most bewitching lady, the plaintiff herself. Gentlemen, do you believe that this enchanting, this fascinating, this captivating, this accomplished lady would for one moment favor the advances or listen with anything save scorn and indignation to the amorous protestations of the wretched and repulsive homunculus, the deformed and degraded defendant?"

His client looked up from the well of the court and piteously murmured:

"Mr. Sergeant Wilkins! Oh, Mr. Sergeant Wilkins!"

"Silence, sir!" replied the sergeant in a wrathful undertone. "Gentlemen," he continued, bringing his fist heavily down on the desk before him, "do you think that this lovely lady, this fair and smiling creature, would ever have permitted an offer of marriage to be made to her by this miserable atom of humanity, this stunted creature, who would have to stand on a sheet of note paper to look over twopence?"

Instant verdict for defendant.—London Globe.

Notices Which Make You Smile.

There is quite a rich crop of humor, usually unconscious, to be reaped by the observant in the notices displayed in shop windows, of which the following announcement by a south end bird fancier is not at all a bad example: "Doves for sale, cheap. Eat nearly anything. Fond of children." Not long ago a Farrington road butcher had in his window this notice: "Wanted, a respectable boy for beef sausages." An east end publican announced, "Billiard tables upstairs, 1 shilling per 100." A well known High Wycombe tobacconist proclaims from his shop window, "This shop is open on Sundays from 9 a. m. to 9 p. m., in spite of Charles II." "Wanted, a warehouseman," ran another similar notice. "Applicants must be accustomed to rigorous discipline. Only the offers of such candidates will be entertained who have served in the army or been married for a considerable length of time."—Westminster Gazette.

'Twould Be Easy Then.

ENTHUSIASM FOR TAFT

When Vote of Great Republican Convention Was Announced

RECEIVED 702 VOTES

And Amid Wild Cheers Motions Were Made the Nomination Unanimous Which was Done.

ALL JOIN IN THE DEMONSTRATION

Chicago, June 18.—For President of the United States William Taft of Ohio.

Taft on the first ballot: Taft by 702 votes: Taft by the unanimous choice of the convention.

Such is the record of the culminating day of the Republican National convention of 1908 affected amid scenes of tumultuous enthusiasm and after a nerve-racking continuous session lasting nearly eight hours. With President named and platform enunciated, there remains only the nomination of the Vice-President to complete this momentous work. Tonight the whole city is given over to wild exultation in honor of the new candidate whose name goes echoing through the country.

The picture within the walls of the vast amphitheater as the presidential candidate was named today was one truly grandoise in its magnitude. In front, to the right and left, below and above the billowing sea of humanity, restless after hours of waiting and stirred from one emotion to another, was in a fever of expectancy for the culminating vote. The favorite sons of other states had been named, save Knox and LaFollette, and now on the roll call came Ohio. As the Buckeye state was reached, the tall, gaunt form of Theodore E. Burton, with student-like face and severe black clerical garb, advanced to the platform to nominate Ohio's candidate. He spoke fervently, with the singing voice of an evangelist, which went ringing through the great building. The close of his speech of nomination was the signal for loosening the long-pent-up feeling of the Taft legions. Instantly the Ohio delegates were on their feet, other Taft states following, while the convention hosts, in gallery and on floor, broke into mad demonstration.

Amid this pandemonium and with the galleries in full control, Chairman Lodge decided upon heroic action in order again to make the convention master of its affairs. He ordered the roll call of states to begin for the vote of president. Such a call, under such circumstances of intense confusion, has probably never before occurred in the history of national conventions. The secretary was powerless to make his call of the states heard above the deafening clamor. Seizing a megaphone he shouted the roll of states—Alabama, Arkansas—but his voice was swallowed up in the mad uproar. Gradually, however, the curiosity of the multitude conquered their enthusiasm and they lapsed into silence to hear the result of the roll call.

A hush of expectancy hung over the assembly as the call proceeded.

When the roll call was completed Senator Lodge made the announcement:

"For Theodore Roosevelt, 3 votes; for Joseph B. Foraker, of Ohio, 16 votes; for Charles W. Fairbanks, of Indiana, 40 votes; for Joseph G. Cannon, of Illinois, 61 votes; for Robert LaFollette, of Wisconsin, 25 votes; for Charles E. Hughes of New York, 63 votes; for Philander C. Knox, of Pennsylvania, 68 votes; and for William H. Taft, of Ohio, 702 votes."

A great shout went up as Lodge concluded his announcement and with one accord the cohorts of Cannon and Knox and Hughes and the other heroes joined in a common tribute for the candidate of the party.

General Stewart L. Woodford, for Governor Hughes, leaping upon a chair moved to make the nomination of Taft unanimous; Senator Penrose, for Knox, and Boutell, for Cannon and Henry, of Georgia, for Foraker, and Wisconsin for LaFollette seconed the movement for a unanimous vote to the candidate. The vote was given with a ringing cheer and then with shouts of exultation over the new candidate the convention adjourned until the next morning when the nomination for vice president was taken up.

Why We Are All Mimics.

"If we did not cough in church, the human race would not exist." And the professor, twiddling a piece of chalk in his hand, regarded the sophomores with a quizzical smile.

"What I mean," he continued, "is that the cause of coughing is the cause of our survival. That cause is mimicry. Mimicry is a better life preserver than fleetness or strength. For by mimicry we manage not to attract attention, and in prehistoric times they who attracted attention were hunted down by the tribe and roasted for dinner or hunted down by the saber tooth tiger and taken raw.

"Since those dark days mimicry has been instinctive with us. Mimicry is what causes us to follow the fashions. It causes us, when in England, to say 'cawn't' and 'lawf.' If your friend yawns, you yawn—that's mimicry. If he laughs, you laugh—mimicry again. If he snuffles, you snuffle—mimicry. And if he coughs in church, straightway you and all the rest of the congregation cough, the reason being the same one which saved our forefathers from extermination."—New York Press.

Famous Floggers.

Among English schoolmasters whose names have come down to posterity with the dubious reputation of great floggers Dr. Busby of Westminster school is the generally acknowledged chief.

Of him it is recorded that, one of his head boys having insulted a young French viscount who came to the school to demand satisfaction, he flogged the viscount first for the bloodthirsty intentions and next his friend who was the bearer of his challenge.

Dr. Valpy, too, who edited an edition of the classics, was a potent wielder of the rod. Archdeacon Groom, who was a pupil of his, tells a story in illustration of his prowess. One of the boys had been flogged by the redoubtable dominie, and the lad's father came to complain.

"Sir," said Valpy to him, "I flogged your son because he richly deserved it. If he again deserves it, I shall flog him again, and," rising, "if you come here, sir, interfering with my duty I shall flog you."

The parent fled.

A Famous Architect's Trick.

When Sir Christopher Wren was building the town hall of Windsor, a fidgety member of the corporation, so the story goes, insisted that the roof required further support and desired the architect to add more pillars. In vain did Sir Christopher assure him that the danger was imaginary. He knew better. The alarm spread, and the great architect was worried into adding the desired columns.

Years passed, and in later times, when architect and patrons were dead, cleaning operations in the roof revealed the fact that the supposed additional supports did not touch the roof by two inches, though this was not perceptible to the gazers below.

By this ingenious expedient did Wren pacify his critics, while vindicating his own architectural skill to future generations.

I'm Telling You.

Pat Murphy, who was in lodgings, was greatly annoyed by the landlady helping herself to his provisions. She began by taking a piece of his butter, and when Pat came home she said:

"Pat, I'm taking a little of your butter, but I'm not like other landladies—I'm telling you."

Next day it was an egg, and so on. Every day there was something taken and put off with the remark, "I'm not like other landladies—I'm telling you."

Of course there was never any reduction in Pat's bill. One Saturday his bill came to a larger amount than usual. Pat looked at it, bundled up a few things in his handkerchief, walked to the door and said:

"Landlady, I'm sloping. I'm not like other lodgers—I'm telling you."—London Answers.

Beautifully Arranged.

Brown—Well, you've got the quarter. Is your sister coming down?

"I've arranged it beautifully, old chap. I told her it was you first, and she said to tell you she was out, and then I said I was fooling and that it was Charley Jones, and you ought to have seen her hustle to get into a clean shirt waist! She'll be right down!"

Not Surprised.

Skipper—I am inordinately sensitive to uncongenial surroundings, so much so that the very sight of some people will give me a nervous shudder. Chipper—Oh, well, there are very few of us that do not shrink from meeting our creditors.

No Hitch.

"How did the wedding come off today?"

"Without a hitch."

"Glad to hear it."

"I said without a hitch. The bride backed out at the last minute."

Not Written.

"How do you write 'horn?'" asked the teacher of a small boy at the blackboard.

"A horn isn't written at all," answered the little fellow. "It's blowed."—Exchange.

WANTED THEIR GOATS.

A Curious Adventure Among the Natives of Africa.

Mrs. Constance Larymore, author of "A Resident's Wife In Nigeria," recounts this curious adventure in Africa: "The sahib, as from ineradicable Indian habit I still commonly call my husband, had gone out at sunset after deer, and during his absence the entire population of the village came streaming up the hill to the rest house, all talking loudly and at once and evidently under the influence of strong excitement. I was by that time well accustomed to creating a sensation whenever I appeared, no white woman having been seen previously, but these people struck me as having more than salutations in their minds and on their clamoring tongues. I had been six weeks in the country. My knowledge of Hausa was confined to salutations and a few simple words, so I summoned our interpreter to help me to entertain my visitors.

"They chattered, shouted and gesticulated at Paul, who eventually explained to me smilingly that they had never seen a white woman before and were anxious to offer me a personal welcome. I nodded and smiled in high gratification, thanked them cordially and when I had exhausted my small stock of polite salutations told the interpreter to give them leave to go home. This they did, somewhat reluctantly, I thought, but after describing the interview with some amusement to the sahib I dismissed the matter from my mind.

"Six weeks later we passed through Lukpa again on our way back to Lokoja and found it deserted—not a man, woman or child, not a goat, not a fowl—all gone, obviously fled into the bush. I felt distinctly hurt at this churlish behavior on the part of my late admirers and learned long afterward that on our first visit our precious interpreter and others of our party had seized and killed every goat and fowl in the village. The wretched owners had rushed up to the rest house to complain, and all they got was 'Thank you!'

"I am not ashamed to confess that I cried when I made that discovery. The lesson, however, went home to us both and drove us to work ceaselessly at the Hausa language, knowing there could be no security for ourselves or justice for the people until we could be independent of dishonest interpretation."

Executing a Death Sentence.

Prince Urussov writes in his "Memoirs of a Russian Governor" of an acquaintance, one Von Rohren, a very kindly man, who liked to tell sometimes of his presence of mind and his police ability as demonstrated on one occasion at his former post. He was once called upon to be present at the execution of a Jewish criminal. The condemned man hung the required number of minutes and was taken down from the gallows, when the physician was supposed to confirm his death. But it appeared that they had forgotten to cut off the Jew's long, thick beard, thanks to which, although the noose had deprived the man of consciousness, it had not killed him. "Imagine yourself in my position," said Rohren. "The doctor told me the Jew would come back to life in five minutes. What was I to do? To hang him a second time I held to be impossible, and yet I had to execute the death sentence." "But what did you do, then?" I asked and received the memorable answer, "I had him buried quickly before he regained consciousness."

To Abolish Spring Elections.

Among the joint resolutions passed by the legislature last year proposing amendments to the state constitution was one to abolish the spring election. Should the session of 1909 pass the same resolution the second time, as is necessary in the matter of constitutional changes, the people will then have an opportunity to vote upon the amendments and in the event of their approval the change will go into effect.

"The resolution abolishes the spring election entirely, and provides that in the even-numbered years in November the state and county officers shall be elected and in the odd-numbered years the municipal election shall be held in November also. Of course the presidential election would occur in the even-numbered years. To carry this into effect requires the amendment of ten sections of the constitution making all terms an even number of years. Offices the term of which is three years are made four years. Those that are now five years are increased to six years. Election of officers chosen for one year would serve two years under the proposed change.

Another resolution passed at the same time provides that municipalities may increase the limit of their indebtedness from seven per cent, the amount now allowed by law, to ten per cent.

A Heartless Father.

One of the most brutal and heart rending things that has occurred in Bellefonte in many a day took place in front of the Theatorium Wednesday evening. It is not known how the scrap started but when witnesses appeared two boys, one much larger and stronger than the other, were trying to settle some difficulty. The larger boy did not want to fight and it is not likely the smaller one did either, but there was the father of the younger boy urging his son on in the fight and seeing him beaten by the other one. It is difficult to surmise his object in thus pushing his boy into the fight and the father himself should have had the trouncing. The fight lasted until a passer-by took the smaller boy's part and pursuaded the brutal father to desist. This is an instance where the whipping post might have been effective in bringing the father to his senses.

Was Opposed to Secret Orders.

Less than 18 months ago a resident of this place, discussing the good and bad traits of a fellow workman, said to the writer, "He's a good mechanic and industrious, but he spends too much with these plagued secret societies." Since that remark was made both men have passed away. The man who belonged to the secret orders left his wife a comfortable home and altogether $3000 beneficial insurance, which was promptly paid to her. The other man died in a rented house and his wife, now advanced in years, is left dependent upon the charity of friends and relatives.—Milton Standard.

There is mighty little virtue in doing a job in a hard way if there is another in which it can be done more easily and just as satisfactorily. There is a point here that a good many folks are slow in catching on to.

We passed a country home the other day where an inverted order of things was plainly noticeable—the odor of the loud smelling hogpens reached the nostrils of the passerby before the sweet fragrance of the lilac bushes which stood in the front yard.

A dozen hills of pumpkin planted among the hills of corn and potatoes in the garden will provide a fine supply of good food for the cow next fall when the milk supply begins to fail. Incidentally, too, the vines will hold in check a whole lot of weeds.

If planting of sweet corn is made at intervals during May and June a fine supply of tender corn will be provided for table consumption covering several weeks, while the family cow will have a nice lot of green feed at a time when pasture will be quite likely be short and flies troublesome.

A washing machine of more recent manufacture than 1890 ought to form a part of equipment of every household where the washing is done at home. It is for the good wife, with her manifold and exacting duties, what the hayfork or manure spreader is for the man of the house—a great reducer of hard, back breaking work.

Will some small boy who reads this department try to figure out for himself and mail the writer of these notes an explanation of how angleworms get into the tub by the well during the night—that is, why are they not seen there at night, but are found there in the morning? This is a natural history phenomenon that has caused a good many older boys and girls to scratch their heads.

In both young and old especial care should be given the eyes and teeth to prevent them from getting out of condition and causing no end of distress and inconvenience as a result. When a fellow gets to the point where his eyes go back on him or he has to sleep o' nights with a double set of false teeth in his mouth he is in a state of mind to appreciate, if somewhat tardily, the force of the above suggestions.

If the suggestion of certain Wisconsin paper manufacturers materializes and proves practicable, it will not be a great while until some newspapers will be of black paper printed with white ink. It is claimed by those back of this suggestion that old newspapers or any other fibrous stock could be used in the manufacture of such paper and at about one-half the present price of white print paper, which is made almost exclusively from spruce and hemlock.

How often as a result of keeping the curtains down in the parlor, which both in practice as well as theory ought to be the best room in the house, dampness, mustiness and cheerlessness prevail! True, the posies in the carpet may lose some of their brightness, though none of their fragrance, if curtains are put up for awhile each day and the glorious germ destroying sunshine is allowed to pour in, but it will mean cheeriness, light and health for the members of the family, who ought to be entitled to more consideration than carpets and wall paper.

An hour's vigorous exercise each day will put the man who is occupied in close and confining indoor pursuits in shape so that he can do more and better quality of work in the seven or nine hours remaining than he would be capable of were he to devote the entire time at his disposal to work without any exercise. This is a fact that thousands of men don't seem to realize until they are broken down with nervous exhaustion, which is usually the direct result of not keeping the body in the proper physical and nervous trim through wholesome and much needed exercise.

The writer lately by chance discovered that a Belgian hare which had been having the run of the neighborhood had been very quietly and thoroughly browsing the tender shoots off most of the rosebushes within reach in a bed which is a couple of rods from the house. A few mornings after this offender was shut up a wild rabbit was noticed doing the same thing. While rabbits will often feed upon raspberry, blackberry and rose bushes in the dead of winter, when other sources of food supply are not easy of access, we were not aware that they would do so in early summer, when other kinds of green food were very plentiful.

The government crop report for April shows that there was on hand in the country March 1, 1908, 37.1 per cent of last year's corn crop, or 962,429,000 bushels; 23.5 per cent of the wheat crop, or 148,721,000 bushels, and 35.5 per cent of the 1907 oat crop, or 267,467,000 bushels.

While a large majority of the people of the United States are in a position to congratulate themselves, if they so desire, that they are native born, it is an interesting and somewhat surprising fact to know that since 1820 over 24,000,000 people have been added to our population through immigration.

The pile of horse manure in the barnyard is the common and favorite breeding place of the house fly. If you haven't a garden on which the manure can be spread as fast as it accumulates, plan to scatter enough lime on the pile from time to time so that the flies will shun it as a breeding place.

The extra cultivation of the field of corn, even if the job has to be done with a single horse cultivator, often results in an increased yield of from eight to twelve bushels per acre. Added to this is the further fact that the same stirring of the soil which makes available increased moisture for the rapidly developing corn also exterminates myriads of weeds that would otherwise draw heavily not only upon the moisture, but the fertility of the soil.

Whenever possible it is well to let poultry have the run of the orchard. In proof of this statement one may cite experiments conducted by the horticultural department at Cornell university, in which it was demonstrated conclusively that better results were secured from having poultry run under the orchard trees than from all other protective measures combined for the holding in check or destruction of insect pests. It is on this account that orcharding and poultry raising even on a large scale go so well together.

The enemies of the corn plant, among which are the corn root worm, corn root louse and wireworm, work the most damage in fields which have been devoted to a cultivation of corn year after year without rest or rotation of any kind. The damage which these pests do is simply a protest of nature at a wrong way of tilling the soil and of growing crops. When a fellow's corn crop begins to suffer from one or all of the above pests it is about time for him to make confession of his agricultural offenses and experience a practical conversion.

It is at best but crocodile and ineffective tears that a mother sheds over the downfall of a daughter whom she thoughtlessly allows to gad about town or country with questionable company until 11 or 12 o'clock at night. It would seem that these girls, than whom in their sweetness and purity a wise and good God made nothing finer, are entitled to as much protection from those who have it in their power to rob them of their crown of womanhood as the little chicks are from the marauding and bloodthirsty mink or the lambs in the fold from the raids of sheep killing dogs.

There has recently been established at Yale university a professorship that is significant of a marked change of sentiment in the United States touching a preservation of our forest areas. This is the endowing with $50,000 worth of lumber company bonds a chair of applied forestry and practical lumbering. The innovation seems to have a special significance in view of the fact that the endowment for the new chair is furnished by a class who in the past more than all others combined have been responsible for the deplorable and almost complete denuding of the forest areas of the country. Much good should come from the establishment of such a professorship, and other colleges should follow the lead of the Yale school.

A move has recently been inaugurated in the Texas Panhandle which it is hoped may spread to other sections of the country and tend to check the threatening congestion of hordes of foreigners in the large cities of the country. It is, in brief, the colonization of Italian immigrants in the country along the Rock Island railway in Texas. A commission appointed by the Italian government made a thorough investigation of the country in question and reported favorably upon the proposition of inducing Italian citizens to locate in the agricultural portions of the state. It is to be hoped that this is the dawning of a new era both as touching the congestion of population in large centers of the country and a development of rural portions of the country.

The Iowa state highway commission has lately issued a bulletin entitled "Road and Bridge Improvements For the Year 1907," which is at once practical and helpful. It contains careful directions telling how to make and use the King road drag and how to properly manipulate the steel grader and takes up the matter of proper drainage of the highways preparatory to doing other road work, as well as the repairing of wooden culverts and the construction of steel bridges with concrete abutments. The commission also stands ready to furnish standard plans and specifications for bridges and culverts and to aid supervisors and township trustees in all ways that they can. The cause of good roads the country over would be greatly advanced were all state boards of this character to cooperate as fu with the local highway authorit

THE YOUNG ORCHARD.

If any of the readers of these notes have set out an orchard this season and want it to do the best possible, they should see that all grass and weeds are kept hoed away clean from the trunks of the trees covering a radius of two feet. Another thing that should be done is to examine the trees carefully for the detection of borers, which work just beneath the bark and at or just below the surface of the ground. The presence of the pests is indicated by the brown, sawdust-like excreta which they cast out through the bark and on to the ground in the progress of their destructive gnawing. A sharp jackknife is as good a tool as any with which to extract the borers unless they have been in the tree more than one season, in which case the passage in which they are working may be a long one. In the latter case it is well to determine the direction in which they have gone and then take a pliable twig small enough to penetrate their retreat and prod them vigorously. It is safe to say that more individual apple trees and young orchards perish from this one cause than all others combined. Unless one is on the lookout for the little pests they will often do a tree to death before he realizes what is the real cause of the difficulty. Keeping the grass hoed away from the base of the tree not only decreases the likelihood of the beetle's depositing her eggs, but usually enables the owner of the orchard to see the brown, sawdust-like evidence of their work. In making the examination of the trees it is well to scrape the earth away from the trunk to a depth of at least an inch, as sometimes the opening through which the excreta are cast is covered up.

LAND FERTILITY.

After all, it is not so much the kind of crops raised as it is the way they are raised and the care given the land that causes it to maintain or lose its fertility. In way of illustration may be cited English farms which today actually produce larger yields of roots and grain than they did 600 years ago or farms in Holland where large yields of flax are produced year after year under a careful system of artificial fertilization. An opposite extreme, but still further illustrating the truth of the statement above made, is the system of cotton growing which has been followed in the southern states, which after from thirty to forty years has left the soil in many sections well nigh bankrupt. Another instance of soil depletion is noticeable in the sections of the corn belt in the middle western states, and this in spite of the fact that corn does not pull heavily on the soil and that relatively little attention is needed in the matter of fertilization and crop rotation to keep the productivity of the soil where it ought to be. While comparatively little studied and consequently but slightly understood, the question of a maintenance of soil fertility is really one of subtraction and addition in that if the strength of the land is to be maintained as much must be added to the soil in the shape of fertilizers of some sort as is taken from the soil in the form of crops. There is no getting around the logic of this situation. A fellow might as well expect to lift himself by his boot straps as to expect to keep up the fertility of his land when he is taking more from it every year in the shape of crops than he makes return in the shape of fertilizers.

SHADE AND SUNSHINE.

A matter that should be looked into by every householder during the early summer months is that of the shade about the house. So rapidly do many of the varieties of shade trees grow that some pruning is necessary almost every year if the house is not to be buried in shade. It is a fairly good rule to follow that the house, as a whole, should be in the sunshine half the time. If this is not the case, one should get busy with ax and saw and let the sunshine in. One need hardly be told that when the shade is so dense that grass grows with difficulty about the house, when moss grows on the roof and mildew appears on books and furniture in the house, there is entirely too much of it, not only for the good and durability of the house, but for the health of its inmates. We are often prone to sympathize with dwellers in treeless prairie homes who often swelter in the July and August sun, but they are not so much in need of pity as those whose dwellings are swamped in shade and where mildew, sow bugs and snails hold high carnival.

ASTERS EASY TO RAISE.

Of the common garden flowers there is hardly any variety that is as easily raised or gives the measure of satisfaction as do the asters. They blossom at a time when many other varieties begin to wane and stand a good deal of dry weather. Like other flowers, they will do best if planted in rich soil and given abundant water. Unlike the pansy and nasturtium, the asters thrive better if they have lots of sunshine, and this fact should be kept in mind when a bed is selected for them. The little plants should be transplanted two or three times, a process that will result in thrifty root systems and sturdy stalks. We have seen bouquets of the tall kind that for size and fullness of blossom, variety of color and all around handsomeness were not inferior to first class chrysanthemums. A feature that simplifies the raising of asters is that they have no insect enemies which have to be combated.

Often The Kidneys Are Weakened by Over-Work.

Unhealthy Kidneys Make Impure Blood.

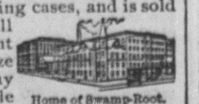
It used to be considered that only urinary and bladder troubles were to be traced to the kidneys, but now modern science proves that nearly all diseases have their beginning in the disorder of these most important organs.

The kidneys filter and purify the blood—that is their work.

Therefore, when your kidneys are weak or out of order, you can understand how quickly your entire body is affected and how every organ seems to fail to do its duty.

If you are sick or "feel badly," begin taking the great kidney remedy, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, because as soon as your kidneys are well they will help all the other organs to health. A trial will convince anyone.

If you are sick you can make no mistake by first doctoring your kidneys. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy, is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases, and is sold on its merits by all druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles. You may have a sample bottle by mail free, also a pamphlet telling you how to find out if you have kidney or bladder trouble. Mention this paper when writing to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.



Home of Swamp-Root.

A Professor's Bugs.

To persons whose tastes run rather to potatoes than to science it will seem that Professor Tower of the University of Chicago might have put his talents and energy to better use than the evolution of new varieties of potato bugs. But that's the way with scientists. Their theories are more important to them than any amount of damage that may follow the effort to prove them. The common or garden variety of potato bug (Doryphora decemlineata) is quite enough for ordinary people and a little too much for the agriculturists who have to contend with him, but Professor Tower has developed a number of new forms, all with abnormal appetites for potatoes, and claims to have proved a great theory of evolution thereby.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

Criminals In New South Wales.

New South Wales has a novel system of dealing with habitual criminals. A man is sentenced to a term for his particular offense and to an indeterminate term because he is an "habitual." When he has served the definite term, if he is well behaved, he can rise from grade to grade, each step being accompanied by various concessions. One feature is that he may earn wages, which may be sent to his family, spent on luxuries or credited to him for the day of release. A committee examines his progress from time to time, advising the minister when he may be released. No release is absolute till after a year's probation under modified restraint.

The Insufferable Anticipation.

A young Scotch emigrant was brought before the magistrate of a Nova Scotia court, charged with having deserted his work on a certain farm without giving due notice to his employer. When asked what he had to say in his defense, he replied, "Weel, they gied me nout but brakeshaw to eat." Brakeshaw, it may be explained, is the flesh of animals which have died a natural death. "How was that?" asked the magistrate. "Weel, it was this way. Ye ken, the auld coo deed an' we ate it, the auld steg (gander) deed an' we ate it, the auld soo (sow) deed an' we ate it, the auld bubblejock deed an' we ate it. Then the old woman deed—an' I left."—Bellman.

Hindoo Confectionery.

Like the American girls, Hindoo girls are passionately fond of sweet things. One of their candies, sadu, is very much like our plain sugar candy. It is made of sugar and milk and flavored with attar of roses. Buddhikabal, or hair of Buddha, is one of their most popular sweetmeats. It is so called because it is in fine, long strings like vermicelli. This is made of sugar and cream from buffalo's milk, which is exceedingly rich.

A Queer Twist.

The late Bishop T. U. Dudley of Kentucky declared that he was indebted to a mountaineer of that state for the most ungrammatical sentence he ever heard. This is it:

"Them three Miss Blake are three of as pretty a gal as I ever see."

Beau Brummel Reprimanded.

Beau Brummel once insolently replied to an invitation to take tea by remarking that he never "took" anything but physic.

"Yes, you do," frowned his hostess "you take liberties."

Playful Otters.

Otters are the most playful of all the animals, romping, wrestling, playing tug of war with a stick instead of a rope and sliding downhill on a slippery incline of mud which they make themselves.

It takes two to make a quarrel, but some folks don't have much trouble finding the other one.—Puck.

EDITORIAL.

A WINNING TICKET.

With the nomination of James Schoolcraft Sherman of Utica, New York, for vice-president of the United States, the Republican national convention of 1908 completed its work. It nominated a strong ticket. Taft and Sherman are in high repute with the people of the United States and the more their merits are considered the greater will be the favor with which they will be regarded.

Ten times has Mr. Sherman been a member of congress. In the house of representatives he long has been recognized as a strong, safe man. As ranking member of the committee on inter-state and foreign commerce and a member of the committee on rules he has had a large influence on important legislation. His repeated elections to congress indicate the measure of esteem in which he is held by his neighbors in Utica where he was born and has always lived and where he has practiced law and actively engaged in business. His eight successive terms in the house of representatives and the two terms preceding them mean that under close inspection for a generation he has retained the confidence of the people of his congressional district through all that time. This is a certificate of character and qualification that justifies and approves his selection by the Republican national convention to be the candidate of the *Re*publican party for the second place in the gift of the American people.

Mr. Sherman is a man fit to be President of the United States That is the highest test of his fitness for the vice presidency. His long service in congress has made him familiar with every public question and with the theory and practice, the method and manner of government. He has the habit. His training and experience, added to his mental equipment, have endowed him with invaluable qualities In the school of the house of representatives he has been rounded and perfected for the new duties for which he has been set apart by the mandate of the delegates of the voters of his part.

The ticket is one that will appeal to the conservative as well as the progressive elements. It has solid qualities, it has optimism. It is in perfect tune with the declaration of the platform of principles. The candidates are and will be vote-getters.

THE Nat Mc's club will surely declare for Taft.

THE next political circus will appear at Denver on July 7.

THE way to bring down the meat prices is to abstain from eating meat

THE Fourth of July ammunition has begun to go off prematurely, which probably means that the doctors and undertakers will be busy again.

THE American Express company's automobile delivery in Bellefonte is on the big city style, and is probably a forerunner of what all the merchants will have in the course of time.

MANY young men who have grown tired of working for other people with little chance for advancement have decided to take up the business of farming as offering them a lucrative and independent living.

THE Beef Trust is doing much to make this a vegetarian nation. The high prices of meat at the present is causing the people to use more fruit and vegetables, which are now correspondingly low in price and there is plenty of them.

THE commissioners of Clarion county have just been surcharged with nineteen thousand dollors, alleged to be graft which they received from contractors who built the county home. We hope the Clarion county jail is strong enough to hold these men if they cannot pay the amount surcharged against them.

Trained to be President.

If ever a man was put in training for the Presidency and kept there, and required to go through all the arduous experience sure to fit him for the final and highest promotion, that man is William Howard Taft. It does not matter that this was what we may call unconscious design. In the very nature of the case it could not be conscious. There exsists no power anywhere to sign an apprentice at the Presidential trade. But in the larger scheme of things, in that play of fate which some call Providence, it was just as if the power to indenture a Presidential apprentice had somewhere exsisted, and a young man named Taft had indentured himself to the American nation. Of course he did not realize it. But he played his part from the beginning precisely as if he had realized it.

As a mattr of fact, Mr. Taft never till quite recently had an ambition to be President. He was not one of those stargazing youths who set out for the White House. This aspiration was not awakened in him till long after it would have had its birth in the minds of ninety-nine men out of a hundred placed as he was. It is well known that his real ambition, even as late as a year or two ago, was for the Supreme Bench.

But the beauty of it, the magnificence of it, from the character viewpoint, is that from first to last he unconsciously acted precisely as if he were conscious, as if he were ambitious for the Presidency, as if he realized that he had signed articles with the American people. That is the way the greatest achievements of the larger scheme of things are almost always worked out in this world.

Mr. Taft trained himself for the Presidency, without knowing it, by always following the law of gravity of his nature, the force which compels him ever to do his best. His is not a complex character. It is not difficult to analyze. It is large, massive, plain, strong, simple. But the very heart, essence, and vitality of it is this something within him which compels him, in every situation and task and relation, every day, hour, and moment, to give forth his best, to reserve nothing of strength from his duty, to forget himself, to throw himself into his work with all his might for the very love of doing that or through the sheer impossibility of doing anything else. The blood of the Puritans is in his veins, and duty is the god of the practical modern Puritan.

BRYAN now knows whose dust he will have to take in November.

FOURTH of July idiot symptoms are beginning to be manifested.

ALL the unsuccessful candidates were very prompt in congratulating Secretary Taft.

NEW Jersey's four votes for Knox made up for the four Pennsylvania votes which went to Roosevelt and Taft.

ANOTHER advantage of sailing in an airship is the possibility of coming occasionally within sight of a piece of beef.

FARMERS in this section of the state are delighted with the prospect of fine crops. This is another indication of the prosperous conditions just ahead.

NOTWITHSTANDING the rejection of Pennsylvania's admirably qualified candidate, the Keystone state will give Taft the usual big majority in November.

MR. Henry Phipps, the steel magnate and philanthropist of Pittsburg, has again distinguished himself by a timely and practical deed of benevolence. He has given the Johns Hopkins University and Medical school the splendid sum of $750,000 for the purpose of establishing a department of the terrible disease of insanity.

Children's Day Services.

The annual children's day services were held in the United Evangelical church Sunday evening. The house of worship was beautifully and tastefully decorated with ferns and blooming plants and American flags were quite conspicuous. The children were well drilled for the parts they had and the singing was of a very good order. A number of recitations were given by the small children while the drills and exercises by the school were exceptionally good. During the service the customary missionary collection was taken. The church was crowded to its fullest capacity to hear the Sunday school folks on this occasion. Following is the program.

Peculiar Drowning Accident.

With her head in the bucket which she had taken to the spring to fill with water, the lifeless body of Miss Hazel Leiby, the 19-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Simon Leiby who lives near Elysburg, Pa, was found fast in a deep narrow spring Tuesday night.

Miss Leiby, her father and brother went Tuesday for the first time to a new farm, which the father had purchased some weeks ago and she was preparing the first meal in the new home, when she had occasion to go to the spring to get water.

It is believed that the girl lost her footbold and fell headlong into the bucket of water in such a manner that she could not help herself.

TAFT,

been in favor of acquiring the islands in the first place. Notwithstanding this, Judge Taft was deemed the best available man to undertake the administration of the islands. He accepted appointment to the chairmanship of the Philippine commission as a matter of public duty and proceeded to Manila with his family.

Thus in 1900 William H. Taft became an international figure. Speaking almost literally, the eyes of the world were upon him. It devolved upon him to administer the affairs of a turbulent archipelago but lately released from centuries of despotic misrule and still struggling violently against the manifest destiny of American guardianship. No other American statesman ever was called upon to undertake a like task. How well Judge Taft fulfilled his mission is indicated by the present situation in the islands. After bringing about a semblance of civic organization Taft was appointed civil governor of the Philippines. He remained four years in the islands. When finally he returned to the United States to become secretary of war in the Roosevelt cabinet he had molded form out of chaos and had given the Filipinos a running start toward ultimate self government of the most approved American brand.

Before departing for the Philippines Judge Taft had said at a dinner that his sincere purpose was to help the people of those islands. When he was governor of the archipelago some American residents complained of certain rulings made by him. Taft replied:

"These islands are being governed for the benefit of the natives. If you don't like the government you can get out."

And he said it firmly, though, of course, good naturedly. An ill natured remark from Taft is a thing altogether unknown. It is not of record that the big Ohioan ever got angry save upon that one memorable occasion when as a young lawyer he thrashed a fellow who had libeled Taft's father. Even then Taft took his own time about getting good and mad.

The little Filipinos were awed by the immense size of the American who had been sent to guide them into the paths of progress. At first they held aloof. Presently they began to come closer. There was something in the Taft smile irresistibly attractive. This big American was by no means so fierce as his size suggested. He was in fact docile and affable, a friendly sort of fellow, who seemed to want to help folks along. Moreover, he had no exaggerated sense of his own importance. He wore no uniform, no gold lace, no badges of distinction. White flannels or duck sufficed for Governor Taft's garb, with a cap or a straw hat to cover his expansive head. He went around among the natives just like an old friend, studying their needs, informing himself as to their history, so that he might the better appreciate their point of view, and always passing upon matters of administration in the spirit of the jurist on the bench who weighs carefully both sides of a case before delivering his opinion.

The result of the Taft methods and the Taft manners was that the Filipinos came to love the large and liberal American who was sent to rule over them. They called him "Saint" Taft, and when he departed for the United States they were not to be comforted. Governor Taft had remained long enough to prove to the islanders that the United States has no intention to exploit them or their resources for the benefit of anybody other than themselves. He had made good his expressed desire to do something to help the Filipino people. He had shown that the archipelago's new government was for the benefit of the native people and not in the interest of the American settlers. This attitude of a guardian nation to a ward was something new under the sun, and it required some time for the fact to percolate into the Filipino understanding and into the appreciation of the skeptic world.

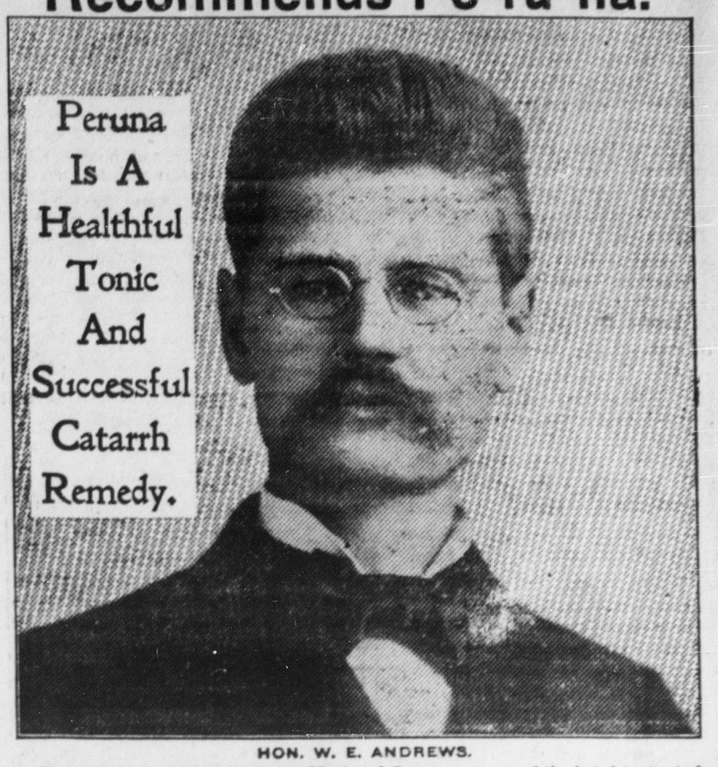
When William H. Taft in 1904 returned to enter the cabinet he already was a man with a career. He had achieved enough to place his name securely in American history. But his career was still in the making. The United States found it necessary under treaty provisions to interfere in the affairs of Cuba in the interest of peace and a stable government. Secretary Taft proceeded to the island and nursed it through the throes of a civic revolution. In Cuba, as in the Philippines, Taft spelled "tact."

Though in public life for a quarter of a century, Mr. Taft's only elective office was that of superior court judge in Ohio. That office he resigned to accept a presidential appointment. The fact that four presidents of the United States have selected him for important posts indicates the capabilities of the man. Taft was but twenty-four years of age when President Arthur made him collector of internal revenue for the district in which he lived. This position, which the average politician would be delighted to get, Taft resigned after less than a year in order to practice law.

Some of his friends felt that in accepting the chairmanship of the Philippine commission and quitting the bench he was forfeiting a fine career as a jurist. Twice during his stay in the Philippine Islands he could have ascended the supreme bench had he been willing to quit his work in the islands. But he was in the midst of highly important duties there in molding a civil government for the native peoples and refused to return to the United States merely for his own advantage.

In the Philippines Mr. Taft had a serious illness. When convalescent he cabled Elihu Root, then secretary of war, "Feel fine; rode eighteen miles on army mule today." Mr. Root cabled back: "Glad you are all right. How is the mule?" This of course was an official joke on the Taft-avel dupois.

MEMBER 54TH CONGRESS U. S. Recommends Pe-ru-na.



HON. W. E. ANDREWS.

Nebraska has furnished to our National Congress some of the brightest minds that have ever adorned that great national legislature. Men of push and fire, men of great oratorical and intellectual resources, men who have done much to shape the destinies of the great western section of our country.

Among these modern statesmen of that versatile, American type, is Hon. W. E. Andrews, of Hastings, Nebraska. Hon. Andrews was formerly Vice President of Hastings College, and established an excellent record as a promulgator of public education before he became a member of Congress. Speaking of Peruna, he says:

"I cheerfully recommend the preparation, Peruna, as a healthful tonic and a successful remedy for catarrh in its various forms."--Hon. W. E. Andrews.

Hon. Thomas Cale, who was elected to Congress from Alaska, is well known on the Pacific slope, where he has resided. His Washington address is 1312 Ninth street, N. W., Washington, D. C. Congressman Cale writes of Peruna:

"I can cheerfully recommend Peruna as a very efficient remedy for coughs and colds."

Some people prefer to take tablets rather than to take medicine in a fluid form. Such people can obtain Peruna tablets, which represent the medicinal ingredients of Peruna. Each tablet is equivalent to one average dose of Peruna.

Hon. C. Slemp, Congressman from Virginia, whose home address is Big Stone Gap, Va., writes:

"I can cheerfully say that I have used your valuable remedy, Peruna, with beneficial results, and can unhesitatingly recommend your remedy to my friends as an invigorating tonic and an effective and permanent cure for catarrh."

Mr. Boss Craig, Fork Vale, Tenn., had catarrh of the head for two years and had abandoned all hope of being cured, but to his surprise Peruna cured him sound and well.

They Say

That this is the horrible story,
From telling it we shrink;
Two Bellefonte men went fishing
Without a drop to drink.

And fish they caught a plenty,
But fish all men can buy,
And held their trip a failure,
Because the trip was dry.

For men may go a-fishing
And fish till the hour is late,
Get never a bite, yet feel alright,
If they've got a bottle of bait.

How's This?

We offer One Hundred Dollars Reward for any case of Catarrh that can not be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure.

Death Claims Entire Family.

Perry Witherite, station agent at Curry, Clearfield county, on the N. Y. C., was sick with typhoid fever about a month ago, also his wife and child. His mother took the child to care for but it died on Thursday, June 4 and on Wednesday, June 10, Perry died. On Thursday his widow gave premature birth to a child which died on Friday night and on Sunday night Mrs. Witherite died, making four deaths in ten days. They were all buried at Zion near Ansonville. Perry Witherite was a fine young man with lots of friends. He was a member of the Red Men of Mahaffey and Lumber City lodge, I. O. O. F., the latter taking charge of the funeral. To make things worse his father and mother both took the fever and were taken to the Clearfield hospital in a critical condition last week. This is one of the saddest affairs that ever happened in that community. Everything that could be done for them was done by the neighbors and friends.

Aurelia R. Pletcher.

Aurelia Rebecca, daughter of Joseph G. and Annie M., (deceased) Pletcher, of Bellwood, died of tuberculosis after a few weeks illness. She was born at Howard, Centre county, October 21, 1891, and was aged 16 years, 7 months and 24 days She was a member of the Methodist church. Her father and three brothers and sisters survive. Mrs. Harry Harvey, of Bellwood; Vira, Martha, Grant and Joseph; also by her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Sager, of Bellwood. The funeral service was held this Monday morning at 10 o'clock at the home, on Tenth street. Interment in Logan Valley cemetery.

Orvis Takes the Lead.

After holding first place again for a few days in the Centre-Clinton league the Howard Millionaires lost in a double header to Mountaineers who now ascend to the top of the list. The Millionaires had been playing record ball but some how the tables turned against them and while the game at Orvis was a close one by the score of 4 to 3, the Millionaires went up in the air in the afternoon and lost by the score of 13 to 7. This was the highest score made by any team during the season.

The Coal Barons came over to Bald Eagle Valley in the afternoon and at Beech Creek added another game to their credit winning from the Red Roses by the score of 6 to 3.

Woolrich and Mill Hall, which teams are struggling to keep from the bottom of the list had another hitch at Mill Hall Saturday and the Ponies succeeded in landing a game from the Woolpickers, the score being 11-4.

What Ails You?

Do you feel weak, tired, despondent, have frequent headaches, coated tongue, bitter or bad taste in morning, "heartburn," belching of gas, acid risings in throat after eating, stomach gnaw or burn, foul breath, dizzy spells, poor or variable appetite, nausea at times and kindred symptoms?

If you have any considerable number of the above symptoms you are suffering from biliousness, torpid liver with indigestion, or dyspepsia. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is made up of the most valuable medicinal principles known to medical science for the permanent cure of such abnormal conditions. It is a most efficient liver invigorator, stomach tonic, bowel regulator and nerve strengthener.

The "Golden Medical Discovery" is not a patent medicine or secret nostrum, a full list of its ingredients being printed on its bottle-wrapper and attested under oath. A glance at its formula will show that it contains no alcohol, or harmful habit-forming drugs. It is a fluid extract made with pure, triple-refined glycerine, of proper strength, from the roots of the following native American forest plants, viz., Golden Seal root, Stone root, Black Cherrybark, Queen's root, Bloodroot, and Mandrake root.

The following leading medical authorities, among a host of others, extol the foregoing roots for the cure of just such ailments as the above symptoms indicate; Prof. R. Bartholow, M. D., of Jefferson Med. College, Phila.; Prof. H. C. Wood, M. D., of Univ. of Pa.; Prof. Edwin M. Hale, M. D., of Hahnemann Med. College, Chicago; Prof. John King, M. D., Author of American Dispensatory; Prof. Jno. M. Scudder, M. D., Author of Specific Medicines; Prof. Laurence Johnson, M. D., Med. Dept. Univ. of N. Y.; Prof. Finley Ellingwood, M. D., Author of Materia Medica and Prof. in Bennett Medical College, Chicago. Send name and address on Postal Card to Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y., and receive free booklet giving extracts from writings of all the above medical authors and many others endorsing, in the strongest possible terms, each and every ingredient of which "Golden Medical Discovery" is composed.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets regulate and invigorate stomach, liver and bowels. They may be used in conjunction with "Golden Medical Discovery" if bowels are much constipated. They're tiny and sugar-coated.

He Returned the Coal.

Although H. A. Argrave, manager of the Buffalo Milling company of Lewisburg took the law into his own hands and passed sentence upon a coal thief, his decision has not been questioned, and is, indeed generally commended because of its undoubted justness. Officials of the milling company had been missing coal for the last several weeks, but could not get no trace of the thief. Monday morning, however Argrave and two employes caught the man with the goods.

The mill manager and his men accompanied the thief to his home, where they found about five tons of coal stored in the bin. Instead of arresting him and throwing him in jail, Argrave requested the coal bin looter to report at the mill later in the day, and after a trial and reprimand before a jury composed of neighbors of the thief and mill employes, gave him three options to settle, as follows:

Pay ten dollars and return the coal in his bin by wheelbarrow between the hours of 7 o'clock in the morning and 5 o'clock in the evening. Pay fifty dollars and keep the coal, or go to jail. The thief accepted the first proposition and during his working hours Wednesday in returning the coal attracted great attention.

Do You Belong to This Lodge.

The other day a prominent club man was standing in the post office talking to a friend and had in his hand a post card which he was about to mail when the friend observed that the man had it addressed to himself. He called his attention to the fact and asked if he had not made a mistake, whereupon the man with the card informed his that he had not and turned the card over to show the inquirer what was printed on the other side. It read: "The regular meeting of the I. G. O. B. S. No 387 will be held this evening at 8 o'clock and every member is requested to be present for the transaction of important business. Any member absenting himself without just reason will be fined $5.00"

"Well, if you are the secretary why do you mail yourself a card?" inquired the other man.

"You don't quite understand," said the man who was mailing the card. "You see that when I mail this card in the office the postman gets it to my house this afternoon and when I go home this evening my wife will hand me the card and say that I must be sure to attend this and not permit myself to be fined. There is no such a lodge as this and I am free for the evening."

Will Stop Rice Throwing.

The following from the Tyrone Herald is published by authority of the Pennsylvania Railroad company and persons who indulge in such nonsensical wedding capers about the depots of the company should take warning.

Some time ago the toomfoolery and vandalism enacted on the occasion of weddings was thoroughly discussed in the Herald. A recent news item relating the fact that a lady traveling on a train lost an eye through the throwing of rice at a railroad station, has caused the company to take up the question of vigorously suppressing the rice-throwing at stations, on the occasion of weddings. Traveling strangers who have no interest in the weddings, are jolted around in a very disorderly manner. At stations where the company has no police officers stationed, arrangements have been made to secure the names of disorderly persons and the railroad officers will later secure warrants and charge the offenders with disorderly conduct under a recent act of assembly, as the railroad company desires to protect its patrons from annoyance and possible injury.

Unclaimed Letters.

STATE EDUCATIONAL ASSOCIATION.

Fifty-Second Annual Session Will be Held at State College July 7 to 9

One of the most interesting and noteworthy educational meetings that has been held in this section for some time will take place at State College, when the Pennsylvania State Educational association holds its fifty-second annual session, beginning Tuesday evening, July 7, and continuing until Thursday evening, July 9. A large number of superintendents, normal school presidents, college presidents and teachers in the state will avail themselves of this very favorable opportunity of visiting the noted Pennsylvania State College. There will be first class accommodations for about 1,500 persons and the table board will be excellent and unusually cheap. The members of the convention will be given every opportunity of visiting the different departments of the college and will see some of the most complete laboratories in this country.

The meetings will be held in the auditorium. The different departments will assemble in the old chapel, the lecture room of the agricultural building and the engineering building. An opportunity will be given during the convention to view the college grounds and to inspect the buildings and equipment. Any one wishing to make a personal inspection will always find some one in charge who will be glad to explain all points of interest. The buildings will be open to visitors at all times. Following is the Woman Deserted Her Baby.

Tyrone had another sensation Saturday night, the principals in this case being a woman and her little baby. About 10 o'clock a woman carrying a little baby was seen walking toward Nealmont. It was thought by those who saw her that her actions were strange, and in about 15 minutes she returned without the baby. This aroused the suspicions of persons in that vicinity, and a search was instituted. The child was soon found by a Miss Reeder, who had been watching the actions of the woman and gave the alarm. The place where the child was found was swampy and had it remained there over night it doubtless would have perished. The woman had provided it with a bottle partially filled with milk.

The little fellow was taken to the Reeder home and the police were notified and they at once went to work on the case. The child is a pretty little boy with light blue eyes and curley hair and is about two weeks old. The woman was seen on one of the Tyrone and Altoona cars and it is thought that she was from Altoona.

Every ingredient entering into the world-famed "Golden Medical Discovery" of Dr. Pierce, has the unanimous approval and endorsement of the leading medical authorities of all the several schools of practice. No other medicine sold through druggists for like purpose has any such endorsement.

The "Golden Medical Discovery" not only produces all the good effects to be obtained from the use of Golden Seal root, in all stomach, liver and bowel troubles, as in dyspepsia, biliousness, constipation, ulceration of stomach and bowels and kindred ailments, but the Golden Seal root used in its compounding is greatly enhanced in its curative action by other ingredients such as Stone root, Black Cherrybark, Bloodroot, Mandrake root and chemically pure, triple-refined glycerine.

"The Common Sense Medical Adviser," is sent free in paper covers on receipt of 21 one cent stamps to pay the cost of mailing only. For 31 stamps the cloth-bound volume will be sent. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo N. Y.

Died From Effects of Burns

Charles Halderman, the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Holderman, of near Fillmore, who was so badly burned by an explosion of powder on Friday June 12, died in the Bellefonte hospital Sunday morning. From the very first his recovery was regarded as doubtful on account of the seriousness of the burns and every thing possible was done to save his life. Charles was about 14 years of age and besides his parents is survived by two brothers and one sister. One of the brothers was burned at the same time but not seriously.

The funeral was held Tuesday morning and services were conducted by Rev. Miller.

Our New Hair Vigor

Ayer's Hair Vigor was good, the best that was made. But Ayer's Hair Vigor, new improved formula, is better. It is the one great specific for falling hair. A new preparation in every way. New bottle. New contents. Ask your druggist to show it to you, "the new kind."

Does not change the color of the hair.

Ayer's — Formula with each bottle. Show it to your doctor. Ask him about it, then do as he says

As we now make our new Hair Vigor it does not have the slightest effect upon the color of the hair. You may use it freely and for any length of time without fear of changing the color. Stops falling hair. Cures dandruff.

A TALE OF THE SEA.

The Upside Down Cruise of the Captain of the Erndte.

An almost incredible instance of the perils attending those who go to sea was the basis of a story told in a maritime court of Dantzic some years ago by the captain of the sailing ship Erndte. Nothing that Jules Verne, Clark Russell and H. G. Wells ever fancied in their wonderful tales surpassed the story told by Captain Engellandt.

He had sailed from Memel with a cargo of planks for Oldenburg. The captain remained at the wheel during a gale which overtook the vessel next night and at 4 in the morning went to his cabin to change his wet clothes.

He had just got into dry underclothing when his vessel capsized, and he found himself standing on the roof of the cabin, the door of which the sea had hermetically closed.

By loosening the boards of what was now the roof he got into the hold, which contained only loose sails. Fortunately some shelves of a high cupboard remained intact, and from them he collected some cans of condensed milk, some prunes, rice, sugar and sausage. He also found a hammer.

For twelve days the master of the ship lived in his prison, eating as sparingly as possible and drinking sea water, which appeared to have no ill effect on him. He employed his free time in hammering on the steel bottom of the ship to attract the attention of passing vessels. He knew when it was day, for a dim light penetrated the water.

On the twelfth day the Norwegian steamer Aurora sighted the wreck and sent a boat to take it in tow. Engellandt had fallen asleep; but, hearing footsteps over his head, he began knocking with his hammer and shouting for help. The Aurora's men returned to their ship for tools, with which they bored a hole through the bottom of the Erndte where they had heard the shouting. When they drew out their drill, a man's finger followed, and they soon learned that Engellandt had food for four days more and wished to be towed to land, for it was impossible to release him in the open sea.

The Aurora towed the wreck safely to Neufahrwasser, where with considerable difficulty it was attached to a huge crane, a plate was unloosened, and the imprisoned master was freed. He was perfectly conscious and even able to walk alone. The three men who had constituted his crew were of course drowned when the vessel capsized.—New York Tribune.

A PARIS CAFE.

The Winning Ways of a Smooth and Wily Extortionist.

At Paillard's and the Cafe de la Paix, which latter is now owned by Ledoyer, who began life as a bottle washer and is today worth 2,000,000 francs, you will be fairly certain of a carte with the prices affixed, but at the Cafe de Paris, unless you are known, you will meet the carte with no price stated, which means that you will be charged whatever the maitre d'hotel thinks you are able or willing to pay. It may be that you will suggest that the usual carte would be a greater compliment to your common sense, but if you do that you are a brave man. The cowards may console themselves with the reflection that in the eyes of the management they are either princes, rich Americans or fools. I have seen half a hundred princes, a few rich Americans and a great many fools, for unless one is born to the purple the maitre d'hotel of such a place as the Cafe de Paris is apt to tower above one, a greater man than Saul of Tarsus. I recall the incident of an American who did object, not to the carte, but to the bill as rendered, and what do you think happened to him?

"If monsieur pleases," suavely said the maitre d'hotel, "it will afford us the greatest pleasure to extend to monsieur the hospitality of the house, in which case monsieur will of course pay nothing, but unless monsieur wishes to accept we must ask him to pay the full amount of the bill as rendered. We cannot permit that our tariff should be questioned."

Oh, there are ways!—"Famous Cafes and Restaurants Abroad," by Aubrey Lanston, in Bohemian Magazine.

Shrewd Advice.

The virtues of a keen business man are often negative rather than positive. It is said that a great broker once told his son that only two things were necessary to make a great financier.

"And what are those, papa?" the son asked.

"Honesty and sagacity."

"But what do you consider the mark of honesty to be?"

"Always to keep your word."

"And the mark of sagacity?"

"Never to give your word."

She Lost Her Shoe.

While in Samoa Robert Louis Stevenson and his wife in a great measure did as the Romans did—that is to say, as the Samoans did. It was Louis' custom to lie abed late of a morning and spend the remainder of the time under a tree on the hill clad in light pajamas, the dress of the native Kanaka. With his wife it was the same. Stays were unknown to her and a curling iron a dim recollection of a shady past. It was while Stevenson and his wife were living at Apia, in Samoa, that Mr. Heywood was appointed consul there for this country. Shortly after his arrival in the country he arranged for a reception to the English, German and American residents of the country that they might meet him in his official capacity and he them as "citizens of Samoa." Of course an invitation was sent Robert Louis Stevenson and his wife. Two days before the date of the function Mr. Heywood was surprised to receive a note from Mr. Stevenson sent by courier. The note read as follows:

Mrs. Robert Louis Stevenson and Robert Louis Stevenson accept Consul Heywood's invitation with pleasure and assure him that they will be present on the evening of the 23d if by that time Mrs. Stevenson finds her other shoe. Everything. ROBERT LOUIS STEVENSON.

Ancient Fashion Jargon.

The language of the fashion plate and the woman's paper is sufficiently appalling to the mere man even in these days of emancipated and, we may presume, more grammatical womanhood; but, according to an extract from a fashion journal of 1787, the jargon of those days was even more astounding. This is how the paper described the dress of a certain Mlle. B. at the opera:

"She appeared in a dress of 'stifled sighs' [illegible] with an ardent regrets,' the bodice cut in a 'perfect candor' point and trimmed with 'indiscreet complaints.' Her hair was dressed in 'sustained sentiments,' with a headdress of 'sustained conquest,' ornamented with several 'flyaways' and 'downcast eye' ribbons, and her collar was 'beggar on horseback' color.'

No doubt all these marvelous terms conveyed some meaning to the fashionable woman of the days when French society danced on the edge of the volcano of 1789, but to their descendants of today they have absolutely no meaning.

The First Hello Girl.

They were seated around a table in a well known cafe, and the conversation had turned upon the development of the flying machine and other fruits of the inventive genius of the day.

"Tut, tut!" exclaimed a solemn faced, lantern jawed member of the party. "What of it? The old folks were not so slow. Look at the telephone, claimed as a modern invention. Why, say, it's the oldest on record."

"You better see your doctor. What's the matter with you?" asked another.

"Oh, I mean it," said the solemn faced man. "Telephone service dates back to the garden of Eden—that's where it originated. The garden's call was 2-8-1 Apple."

Then he dodged the remnant of a sandwich, reached for his hat and was gone.—New York Globe.

Why, Indeed?

Robert Lowe once watched a deaf friend listening to a most tremendous bore with his ear trumpet. "Why," Lowe wondered aloud—"why contend against natural advantages?"

Silver is of less value than gold gold than virtue.—Horace.

A Square-Deal

Is assured you when you buy one of Dr. Pierce's Family Medicines—for all the ingredients entering into them are printed on the bottle-wrappers and attested under oath as being complete and correct. They are gathered from Nature's laboratory, being selected from the most valuable native, medicinal roots found growing in our American forests. While potent to cure they are perfectly harmless even to the most delicate women and children.

Not a drop of alcohol enters into Dr. Pierce's leading medicines. A much better agent is used both for extracting and preserving the medicinal principles, viz.—pure triple-refined glycerine of proper strength. This agent possesses medicinal properties of its own, being a most valuable anti-septic and anti-ferment, nutritive and soothing demulcent.

Glycerine plays an important part in Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery in the cure of indigestion, dyspepsia and weak stomach, attended by sour risings, "heartburn," foul breath, coated tongue, poor appetite, gnawing feeling in stomach, biliousness and kindred derangements of the stomach, liver and bowels.

For all diseases of the mucous membranes, the "Golden Medical Discovery" is a specific. Catarrh, whether of the nasal passages or of the stomach, bowels or pelvic organs is cured by it. In Chronic Catarrh of the Nasal passages, it is well, while taking the "Golden Medical Discovery" for the necessary constitutional treatment, to cleanse the passages freely two or three times a day with Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy. This thorough course of treatment generally cures even in the worst cases.

In coughs and hoarseness caused by bronchial, throat and lung affections, except consumption in its advanced stages, the "Golden Medical Discovery" is a most efficient remedy, especially in those obstinate, hang-on-coughs caused by irritation and congestion of the bronchial mucous membranes. The "Discovery" is not so good for acute coughs arising from sudden colds, nor must it be expected to cure consumption in its advanced stages—no medicine will do that—but for all the obstinate hang-on, or chronic coughs, which, if neglected, or badly treated, lead up to consumption, it is the best medicine that can be taken.

It's an insult to your intelligence for a dealer to endeavor to palm off upon you some nostrum of unknown composition in place of Dr. Pierce's world-famed medicines which are OF KNOWN COMPOSITION. Most dealers recommend Doctor Pierce's medicines because they know what they are made of and that the ingredients employed are among the most valuable that a medicine for like purposes can be made of. The same is true of leading physicians who do not hesitate to recommend them, since they know exactly what they contain and that their ingredients are the very best known to medical science for the cure of the several diseases for which these medicines are recommended.

With tricky dealers it is different.

Something else that pays them a little greater profit will be urged upon you as "just as good," or even better. You can hardly afford to accept a substitute of unknown composition and without any particular record of cures in place of Doctor Pierce's medicines which are OF KNOWN COMPOSITION and have a record of forty years of cures behind them. You know what you want and it is the dealer's business to supply that want. Insist upon it.

ONLY ONE

The Record in Bellefonte is a Unique One.

If the reader has a "bad back" or any kidney ill and is looking for relief and cure, better depend on the only remedy endorsed by people you know. Doan's Kidney Pills relieve quickly—cure permanently. Bellefonté citizens testify to this. Here is a case of it:

Mrs. Emma J. Davis of E. Logan St. Bellefonte, Pa. says; I have a great deal of confidence in Doan's Kidney Pills, and have already recommended them in a published testimonial in 1897. I told how I had been relieved of kidney complaint and backache which had kept me suffering for years. Doan's Kidney Pills did this for me when other remedies had failed. Whenever I feel any symptom of my old trouble I send to F. Potts Green's drug store for a supply of Doan's Kidney Pills and it never requires more than a few doses to get me right."

Madame Baker at Joseph's Store.

Madame Baker, a scientific palmist, is now filling an engagement at the store of Joseph Brothers & Company and since her arrival on Saturday has been quite busy reading the palms of Bellefonte people. She has recently been in some of the cities in the eastern part of the state where she was well received and which places she left with the full confidence of the people. The newspapers of Mt. Carmel, Shamokin and other places commend her to the people in a hearty manner. Madame Baker comes to Bellefonte with the best of recommendations and with a country-wide reputation.

It should be remembered that palm reading is a science and that there is a vast difference between it and fortune telling. Madame Baker has made this science a study and follows the lines of the great professors. There is none of the gypsy fortune teller guess work about palmistry but it can only be acquired after years of hard study and close application. Madame Baker is one of the four really scientific palmists now in this country and makes it her practice to locate in the leading stores rather than remain permanently in one of the large cities. She tells you of your rise to your present station and from the lines of your hands can tell your ambitions and what degree of success you may expect if you follow out your plans as the lines indicate you have formed.

Madame Baker will remain at Joseph Brothers & Co's. store for a short time and during her stay the costomers of the store will be given an introductory card which with 35 cents will entitle them to a complete reading of the palm.

Mrs. S. L. Bowen, of W. Va., writes: I was a sufferer from kidney disease, so that at times I could not get out of bed, and when I did I could not stand straight. I took Foley's Kidney Remedy One dollar bottle and part of the second cured me entirely." Foley's Kidney Remedy works wonders where others are a total failure. Sold by C. M. Parrish

Crusade Against Dogs.

Armed with shotguns purchased by the Danville Council for its crusade against the dogs of that town, deputies are now patrolling the streets night and day, shooting on sight of all dogs found on the streets without a muzzle that comes up to the rigid requirements of the borough ordinance. Scores of animals have already been killed.

Since the death of Joseph Gerst there on Monday who succumbed to an attack of hydrophobia, the entire population of Danville has been aroused to the dangers of the epidemic of rabies which has prevailed for the last year.

During the last twelve months scores of dogs have gone made and run amuck through the town and country, biting other dogs, horses and cattle and even a number of people. Several horses have already developed hydrophobia and died. Other animals are known to have been bitten by the mad dogs. The full extent of the damage done cannot be exactly ascertained and the uncertainty makes the situation all the more trying.

If a cough once gets into your system it acts on every muscle and fibre of the body and makes you ache all over. It especially affects the intestines and makes you constipated, so in order to get rid of a cold thoroughly and without delay you should not take anything that will tend to constipate. Kennedy's Laxative Cough Syrup acts upon the bowels and thereby drives the cold out of the system. It contains no opiates it is pleasant to take and is highly recommended for children. THE WOMAN WHO COUGHED.

Catarrh had nearly ruined me. It had eaten away the partition in my nose; produced Asthma, Bronchitis, Rheumatism; ruined my stomach; in fact, gone all through my system. Then Grip finished me. I was a wreck; took cold at nothing; and coughed day and night. The doctors dosed me with opium and quinine. No good. Cough "cures"? Bah! Then Brazilian Balm renovated me. Killed every germ. Took 10 $1.00 bottles. Now I'm like a girl of 18.

SHERMAN IS TAFT'S MATE

New York Representative is Chosen on First Ballot

TICKET IS A WINNER

Uncle Joe Cannon is Active in Securing Taft's Running Mate. Iowans Were In Favor of Gov. Cummins

NOMINATION WAS MADE UNANIMOUS

Chicago, June 19.—The final session o the Republican national convention was held today for the purpose of nominating a candidate for vice president. It was a short one, lasting an hour and a half, and in that time the New Yorkers accomplished the name of James S. Sherman, of Utica, Oneida county, for vice president, more than the Hughes State League and the Hughes National League have in the last six months.

There were fully 10,000 people on hand at 10 o'clock this morning and half an hour later Permanent Chairman Lodge had the convention under way. The band played all sorts of melodies and seemed particularly partial to "Maryland, My Maryland."

The convention stood for nearly half an hour while Rabbi Shonfaber was making his invocation.

Satisfied with having won the nomination of Taft for President and the adoption of a strong progressive platform, supporters of the Administration yesterday permitted the "conservaties" to name the candidate for Vice President.

Representative James S. Sherman, of Utica, New York, was chosen on the first ballot, his vote being 816. Others who received votes were Governor Guild, of Massachusetts, 75, and ex-Governor Franklin Murphy, of New Jersey, 77.

Shermon was nominated by Timothy Woodruff, of New York, and seconded by Speaker Cannon.

He has always been regarded as a useful member of the Cannon-Aldrich clique in Congress, and while the leaders hope his selection will harmonize the factions in the party, it may cool the enthusiasm of western Republicans, who wanted some such progressive as Governor Cummins, of Iowa, as Taft's running mate.

"It is a winning ticket and a sound platform" was the substance of expressions made following the nomination of Sherman for Vice Prpsident. It is the general opinion that the Republican party has placed itself in a peculiarly strong position before the voters of the country.

There were, indeed, those who expressed the view that on this or that question, the platform did not go far enough, or went further than some of the elements in the party would like. On the currency question, for instance, leaders in the fight for currency reform expressed the view that the declaration might have been for some specific currency plan, yet it was agreed that it is a distinct step in advance.

There were also in the manufacturing world those who were inclined to question the wisdom of committing the party tariff revision. Yet it was surprising that the majority of manufactures seen were of the opinion that revision must come, and that is the time for it.

Life.

The poets' exclamation: "O Life I feel thee bounding in my veins," is a joyous one. Persons that can rarely or never make it, in honesty to themselves are among the most unfortunate They do not live but exist, for to live implies more than to be. To live is to be well and strong—to arise feeling equal to the ordinary duties of the day, and to retire not overcome by them— to feel life bounding in the veins. A medicine that has made thousands of people, men and women, well and strong, has accomplished a great work, bestowing the richest blessings, and that medicine is Hood's Sarsaparilla. The weak, rundown, or debilitated from any cause, should not fail to take it. It builds up the whole system, changes existence into life, and makes life more abounding. We are glad to say these words in its favor to the readers of our columns.

The Affair of the Count.

By CLARISSA MACKIE

Copyrighted, 1908, by Associated Literary Press.

"Of course I do not wish to marry the count," said Miss Bernard petulantly. "If Aunt Dorinda gave you to understand"— She paused significantly.

"She did give me to understand that the affair was settled," muttered Emory, his gloomy eyes fixed on the flashing sails in the harbor. "In fact, she intimated that Americans cut no ice in the matter."

"Poor auntie loves a title," sighed Jean, ruffing her pretty hair distractedly. "Why couldn't she marry the count herself?"

Emory got upon his feet with sudden alacrity. There was fire in his red brown eyes and determination in the lines of his strong jaw.

"If Miss Leigh marries the count, will you marry me, Jean?" he asked delightedly.

Miss Bernard stared; then she laughed merrily.

"Why not? With auntie's craving for a titled position satisfied, I believe I might— Don't—not yet!" She warded off Emory's impulsive movement and sought refuge behind a high backed chair. "And now be off about your business, Mr. Marriage Broker!"

"WHY—WHY," STAMMERED MISS LEIGH CONFUSEDLY—"WHY NOT?"

She smiled derisively at him. Emory picked up his hat and ran down the steps.

"What are your engagements for this evening, Jean?" he asked calmly.

"The dance at the Bicknells', of course!"

"And Miss Leigh—and the count?"

"They dine with Mrs. Drake and come to the dance afterward."

"I will see you at Bicknell's, Jean Come early, dear," he said brazenly.

"Run away, you bold, bad, mercenary American!" retorted Miss Bernard saucily; then she watched him as he strode down the path and on to the shore road, a warm light in her gray eyes "I would whether auntie married the count or not," she murmured mysteriously.

* * * * * * *

"Eet ees ze beautifulness of ze evening zat appeals to my lovaire soul," gurgled Count Leon Despagne as he joined Miss Dorinda Leigh on the veranda of the Frake mansion.

Miss Leigh adjusted a lorgnette to her high bridged nose and peered up at the star jeweled sky and then over the moonlit bay, with its hundred anchor lights vaguely indicating the whereabouts of pleasure craft.

"It is very pleasant," she replied practically, "but of course it cannot compare with your own country! The romance, the beauty, the stateliness of the old chateau"— She sighed luxuriously.

"Ah, eet ees glorious, ze vale de Loire, ze magnificent Chateau Despagne. Ah, mademoiselle, what ees all of eet without your beautiful niece? You haf been so kind, so gracious, you are quite—sure?" His voice quavered doubtfully.

"There is no doubt about it, count," returned Miss Leigh in a tone of decision. "Of course Miss Bernard is quite young, but I assure you she is not as thoughtless as she may appear, and I am quite sure that your affection is reciprocated."

The count grasped her thin white hand with an ecstatic cry. At that moment a servant approached them. "A note for Miss Leigh," he said.

Miss Leigh went to the drawing room window and perused the note in the stream of light that sifted through the lace draperies. When she turned her face was quite white and her hands shook tremulously.

"Order my car around, please," she said to the servant, and as he departed she whispered to the count: "This is terrible! I have just received news that my niece has eloped with that villainous young Emory! Will you join me in the pursuit, dear count?"

"Sacre!" muttered the count bitterly as he followed Miss Leigh to the drawing room to make their adieus. Five minutes later they were seated in the tonneau of the huge vehicle and whirling rapidly along the shore road toward the east.

As the miles curled out from under the tires Miss Leigh gasped scanty particulars of the flight.

"It was an anonymous letter, from some friend, I suppose. They eloped from the Bicknell dance in his automobile, going toward the east."

"Zere are so many cars," whimpered the count, turning up the collar of his light overcoat, "we cannot identify ze villain." His thin voice shook with rage.

"It is a white car. There are not many going this way. You see we are meeting some. None of them is white. I have ordered Francois to spare nothing to make the time." The chauffeur, bending low over the steering wheel, let out the speed a little more, and the machine swayed from side to side with a zipping, tearing grind that precluded any further conversation.

Watchful and observant, Miss Leigh and her guest sank into silence, and an hour passed as they whirred their way through town and village, eluding vigilant constables with reckless daredevilitry on the part of Francois, who was drunk with a lust of speed. On the outskirts of the city Miss Leigh ordered him to slow down, and presently the machine panted motionless at the roadside while Miss Leigh and the count took counsel together.

At that instant, out of the darkness behind them, there shot a triangular ray of light, and a white car swooped down and stopped beside them.

"Oh, Aunt Dorinda! How could you?" came Jean's reproachful young voice.

"Count, I am sure you can make some explanation!" thundered Emory in stentorian tones.

"How could I what? What do you mean, Jean? Such impertinence on your part, Mr. Emory! Why—I understood—I received a note saying that you and Jean were eloping, and of course—of course—the count and I were pursuing you!"

"It didn't look like it, Miss Leigh," said Emory in a muffled voice. "It would be most ridiculous for Jean and me to elope, for Jean is going to marry me anyway, but as soon as we heard of your el—er—that is, as soon as we heard that the count had kidnaped you"—

"Eet ees a lie! I haf not done zat thing!" vociferated the count's voice out of the darkness. "Eet ees ze young mademoiselle zat I lofe! Without her I am—deespairing beggar for lofe!"

"You are making a scene, count," remonstrated Miss Leigh coldly. "As for you, Jean, you have broken my heart. I did not know you were so deceitful! When I spoke about the chateau and"—

"Mademoiselle," whispered the count with passionate intensity, "why no conzole my loneliness—and go wiz me We will enjoy ze plaisure—ze beauty of Loire"—

"Why—why," stammered Miss Leigh confusedly—"why not?"

Learn to Obey.

Learn to obey! By obedience I do not mean a merely outward submission to outward force and authority, but the voluntary subordination of one's own will under the will of a better and higher intelligence. He who has not learned to do this in childhood will have great difficulty in learning it in later life; he will rarely get beyond the deplorable and unhappy state that vacillates between outward submission and uproarious rebellion. No greater wrong can be done to childhood than the one caused by our desire to spare it the necessity of obeying. Whoever conceives the duty of the educator to consist in giving in to all desires of the child, in gratifying all its wishes makes himself guilty of the gravest sin toward his child. He denies it what, in view of its future mission, it cannot afford to lose—namely, the exercise in voluntarily subordinating its own will under necessity, be it a natural or a social one.—Professor F. Paulson, University of Berlin, in Educational Review.

Strange Feats of Eye and Hand.

An expert who prided himself upon the smallness of his writing sent the president of the French academy a grain of wheat on which he had written 221 words. A Polish poet wrote all of Homer's "Iliad" on a piece of paper which could be rolled up small enough to go into a nutshell.

In the sixteenth century a man named Mark offered to Queen Elizabeth a gold chain of fifty links. The chain was so fine it could not be seen unless it was put on a sheet of white paper. To prove its lightness Mark tied it to a fly which flew away with it. The most curious fact in this matter, which required so extraordinary a facility of touch for making this ornament, was that Mark was a blacksmith, accustomed to all kinds of heavy tools all day long.

A Spaniard, Joseph Faba, made a carriage as large as a grain of wheat Under a magnifying glass it was possible to see the interior fitted up with seats, every detail being carried out to perfection.

Sure of Water.

Sir Joseph Prestwich had bought in 1894 a small estate near Sevenoaks, on which he built a residence, but it was high up on a dry and treeless chalk down. Where was water to be found?

So confident was Prestwich in respect of water supply that he at once engaged an old well digger to sink a well 168 feet deep. The boring proceeded, but when a depth of 166 feet was reached the two workmen went to the city and sought an interview with their employer, whom they found at his desk. They explained that there was no sign of water and that in their opinion it was useless to bore to a greater depth. "Go on," was the quiet rejoinder. "You will come upon water tomorrow. You are within two feet of it." Next day it proved exactly as Prestwich had foretold, and ever after, among many of the denizens of the valley, he had the reputation, much to his amusement, of not being quite "canny."—"Life and Letters of Sir Joseph Prestwich."

Grippe is sweeping the country. Stop it with Preventics, before it gets deeply seated. To check early colds with these little Candy Cold Cure Tablets is surely sensible and safe. Preventics contain no Quinine, no laxative, nothing harsh or sickening. Pneumonia would never appear if early colds were promptly broken. Large box, 48 tablets, 25 cents. Vest pocket boxes 5 cents. Sold by Greens Pharmacy

Stop That Cold

To check early colds or Grippe with "Preventics" means sure defeat for Pneumonia. To stop a cold with Preventics is safer than to let it run and be obliged to cure it afterwards. To be sure, Preventics will cure even a deeply seated cold, but taken early—at the sneeze stage—they knock, or head off these early colds. That's surely better. That's why they are called Preventics.

Preventics are little Candy Cold Cures. No Quinine, no physic, nothing sickening. Nice for the children—and thoroughly safe too. If you feel chilly, if you sneeze, if you ache all over, think of Preventics. Promptness may also save half your usual sickness. And don't forget your child, if there is feverishness, night or day. Herein probably lies Preventics' greatest efficiency. Sold in 5c boxes for the pocket, also in 25c boxes of 45 Preventics. Insist on your druggists giving you

SECHLER, & Co.

If one feels dull and spiritless, in the spring or early summer, they call it "Spring Fever". But there is no fever—usually. It is the after effect of our winten habits. The nerves are mostly at fault. Tired, worn-out nerves leave us languid, lifeless, and without spirit or ambition. A few doses of Dr. Shoop's Restorative will absolutely, and quickly change all of these depressing symptoms. The Restorative of course won't bring you back or full health in a day or two, but it will do enough in 48 hours to satisfy you that the remedy is reaching that "tiredspot". Druggists everywhere are advising its use as a splendid and prompt general tonic. It gives more vim and more spirit to the spoonful than any other known nerve or constitutional tonic. It sharpens a failing appetite, aids digestion, frees sluggish livers and kidneys, and brings new life, strength and ambition. Test it a few days and be convinced Sold by Green's Pharmacy

BRIEF MENTION

Short Items of Local Interest Gathered By The Way Side

—When it comes to the scratch the flea is generally somewhere else.

LOST—Between Dr. R. G. H. Hayes' office and Brachbill's furniture store, a plain flat bracelet. Finder please return to this office.

—In order to accommodate the many persons who attended the commencement at State College this year a number of the students and alumni slept in tents on the campus.

—Mrs. Charlotte Smith, mother of President Judge Allison O. Smith, of Clearfield county, died at Watsontown Monday morning, aged 87 years. She is survived by four children.

—It is now claimed that the $2,000,000 shortage that caused the failure of the Allegheny National bank at Pittsburg will be made good by money politicians who are threatened with exposure.

—The Pennsylvania Railroad company has issued orders to its firemen to save the coal and reduce the smoke. The company should provide its firemen with Ellmore's compound which purports to do both.

—The citizens of Punxsutawney have just landed three new industries by raising $60,000 in three days. Two of the new plants will be glass works and the other will be a hoop mill. Work on one of the glass works has already been commenced. The three plants will employ about 700 men and it is expected that all will be in full operation before Thanksgiving.

—Increase in salaries of postoffices clerks and letter carriers in towns in Western Pennsylvania were made public at Washington on Monday and among them was Bellefonte, with increases as follows: One clerk from $600 to $800; another $900 to $1000 and three carriers from $900 to $1000. This increase is doubtless very gratifying news to the Bellefonte clerks and carriers.

—William McClellen of east Lamb street was bitten by a dog Wednesday evening while cutting some grass for his horse in a field back of his home. While the wound was not considered a dangerous one he immediately went to a physician and had it cauterized. This was probably one of the worthless curs running around town and not worth enough powder to blow its head off.

—Prof. Emmett McBride, of the faculty of the Dayton Normal school has been mysteriously missing since the 4th of June. The day before his disappearance he taught his classes as usual, participated in a ball game and borrowed $10 from another teacher. He was in Pittsburg June 4 trying to secure a substitute to preach two sermons for him next Sunday and since then nothing has been heard of him.

—Mrs. Robert H. Foerderer, of Torresdale has issued invitations for the marriage of her daughter, Florence Augusta, to William T. Toner, the wedding to take place on Saturday, June 27. The bride-elect is a native of Centre county and the groom is a son of Mr. and and John Toner, formerly of Bellefonte but now of Philadelphia. Hard P. Harris of this place, will act as best man at the wedding.

—Mrs. Eliza C. Grazier died at the home of her son-in-law John F. Mattern, at Warriorsmark on Sunday, aged 82 years and 4 months. For a number of years she made her home in Hollidaysburg before coming to Warriorsmark to reside with her daughter, Mrs. John F. Mattern, who died about a year ago. One son, George C. Grazier, of Marengo, this county, survives her. The funeral was held on Wednesday forenoon.

—Paul Marshall, the 9-year-old son of B. F. Marshall, of Lock Haven, had several of his teeth loosened, his tongue split and his mouth badly lacerated by exploding a torpedo cap in his mouth. He had thrown a torpedo to the pavement and it did not go off. He picked up the cap and was going to use it in a small gun. While the boy was eating a pretzel and in some manner put the cap in his mouth and biting on it caused it to explode.

—George T. Roesch, who has conducted a stock brokers office here for the past few months, has decided to quit Bellefonte on account of having trouble in securing the proper wires for the successful operation of his business. It is rumored that T. S. Strong, who was formerly located here, will return in the near future. During his short stay in Bellefone Mr. Roesch made many friends who will be sorry to see him leave. He was always very prompt in his business dealings and gave the best service possible.

—New home grown peas and potatoes are making their appearance.

—The man who tells all he knows soon gets into the habit of telling more.

—A rainy day is more of a disappointment to base ball fans than the loss of a game.

—Through a special act Daniel Cunningham of Monument, has been granted a pension of $30 a month.

—On Thursday DuBois celebrated the 20th anniversary of the big fire that destroyed a large portion of the city.

—On Sunday, June 28, there will be a partial eclipse of the sun, which will be visible throughout the United States.

—A large class of boys and girls received their first communion at the St. John's Catholic church Sunday morning t 10 30 o'clock.

—Druggist J. D. Murray of Centre Hall celebrated his 82nd birthday anniversary last Monday. Mr. Murray has been a resident of that place for 55 years.

—The Clearfield Daily Spirit remarks that the moving picture shows are taking in hundreds of dollars every week that the hotels used to get. This would indicate that Clearfield has an unusually large number of residents on the water wagon.

—The annual picnic and outing of the Episcopal church will be held at Hecla park on Friday, June 26, and all the members and friends of the congregation are invited to join in the day's pleasures A special train will leave for the park a 9.45 o'clock in the forenoon.

—The Centre county people in Chester held a picnic on Friday at the farm of D. C. Keller near Phoenixville. There were quite a few former Centre countians present who reside in Chester county and the picnic was also attended by some friends from Centre county.

—Friday evening Thomas Morgan succeeded in landing five of the nicest trout that have been caught in Spring Creek in the same length of time. He began fishing at 7:45 o'clock and quit at 8:45, catching in one hour the five that measured respectively 18, 17, 13, 11 and 10 inches. Last Saturday he caught one that was 16 inches in length.

—A 7-year-old son of W. R. Swan, of Falls Creek, knocked down a robin's nest the other day and carried three of the young robins home. Game Warden Crawford, of DuBois, was notified of it and arrested the boy. On a hearing he was fined $10 for knocking down the nest and $10 each for the robins, making $40 in all. The boy's father refused to pay the fine and he was held for court in the sum of $200.

—The state inspector of public buildings was in Bellefonte recently and while here took occasion to look at some of the concrete buildings now in course of construction. One of them was the building which Haupt Brothers are putting up on Thomas street. The inspector spoke very complimentary of the work of these gentlemen, both in the making of blocks and in the construction of the building.

—Mrs. Clara J. Ulmer, of Salladasburg, died Wednesday from the effects of carbolic acid which she drank by mistake. Mrs. Ulmer had been ill for a few days and got up in the night to get some medicine. Thinking she knew the exact location of her medicine she did not light a lamp and got the wrong bottle and did not discover her mistake until she had drank some of the contents. She died about an hour after drinking it.

—A jolly party of autoists from Patton visited Bellefonte Wednesday afternoon, stopping here to see some friends and then passing on to Hecla where they partook of an excellent chicken dinner at the Nittany club. After enjoying this pleasant feature of the trip they continued on their tour, their destination being Corning, N. Y. The party was composed of Messrs. Henry Mills, owner of the auto, Will Reese, Major Allport, Dobby Densmore and Edward Hunter.

—It is reported that in some places automobilists are using false numbers on their machines. Officers who take the numbers of a machine to ascertain the name of an offending autoist find that it may be away off in some other part of the state and thus persons who violate the speed law elude arrest. The penalty for this violation deprives the owner of the use of his machine for six months, as his license is taken from him and cannot be renewed for that length of time, and he is also subject to a fine.

—The annual picnic of the Methodist church and Sunday school was held at Hecla Park on Thursday and the attendance was quite large. The day was an ideal one for a picnic and with well filled baskets the parents and children left the cares of home and went to this pleasant place of outing. The children enjoyed themselves to their hearts content in games and romping over the grounds. Many of the pleasure seekers came home on the afternoon train while others remained for supper and came home on the night train.

—The usual crop of cherry tree accidents are being reported.

—It is about time to begin resting up for your summer vacation.

—Sunday was the longest day in the year and also one of the hottest.

—The pleasant weather is affording excellent bass fishing along Bald Eagle Creek.

—It does not require much urging to have people obey the injunction not to get excited during the warm weather.

—Monday was another sweltering hot day and the heat continued far into the night, making it almost too warm to sleep.

—Rattle snakes are reported to be quite plenty this year and fishermen and others who frequent their haunts have encountered them in large numbers.

—A young son of Samuel Boop, a farmer who resides near Salona, fell from a cherry tree the other day and broke both arms just above the wrists, which will render him helpless for sometime.

—As the result of an explosion at the Ellsworth mine, near Monongahela, Friday evening four miners were killed and six badly injured. It is thought that the explosion was caused by a motor spark.

—The Mill Hall team of the Clinton—Centre league which a week ago defeated the Lock Haven team had the tables turned on them last Friday, the Lock Havenites shutting out the Ponies by the score of 9-0.

—It is rumored that Bellefonte is to have a circus sometime next month. If such is the case it will be welcomed by the small boys and girls with gladness for they have been looking for one to come this way for quite awhile.

—The Bellefonte Camp P. O. S. of A. will attend services in a body at the United Evangelical church next Sunday evening, at which time the pastor Rev. J. F. Hower will preach an appropriate sermon to the order.

—Word was received here Saturday that Samuel Rice who was stricken with paralysis while visiting his sister near Hannah last Thursday received another stroke on Saturday and that his condition is regarded as quite serious.

—The Sunday school and congregation of the United Evangelical church will hold their annual picnic at Hecla Park on Thursday, June 2. All persons intending to attend this picnic are requested to report at Sunday school next Sunday morning so that a proper estimate can be made for accommodations.

—Married at 15, father at 16 and a grandfather at 31, Isaac Lord and wife, of Honesdale, last week celebrated their fiftieth wedding anniversary. They are one of the youngest couples in the county that have ever done so. Lord is a farmer and general storekeeper, and his family is one of the oldest in that part of the country.

—Both the Watsontown and the Milton base ball teams are stirring up much enthusiasm in their home towns at present and the interest is increasing each day. These teams will play at Hecla Park on the Fourth in the forenoon at 10 30 and in the afternoon at 2 30. Judging from their present fast playing they will put up two good games at the Undine picnic.

—Persons who drink ice water or any kind of iced beverages should be very careful during this hot weather not to drink it to excess. Many persons have made themselves critically ill by drinking ice water in a large quantity. The recovery of Harold Fisher, of Unionville, who was struck on the head with a base ball, was greatly retarded on account of his having drunk frequently of ice water while being in a heated condition from playing ball.

—The dealers in town now have on display quite an attractive line of fireworks for the Fourth of July and they are a temptation to young America which cannot be resisted. Numerous complaints are being made of the extent to which fire crakers, torpedoes and pistols are being shot off about town. This practice is quite an annoyance to many persons and the law prohibiting their use until the Fourth should be more rigidly enforced.

—The twenty-third annual convention of the Blair county Sunday school association was held in Tyrone Thursday and Friday. One of the leading features of the convention was the parade Friday evening when about two thousand scholars, teachers and officers paraded the streets in Tyrone. It was one of the most interesting things that has occurred there for some time. The parade was headed by the Alexandria band and the little tots were taken in automobiles.

A Salona Man Dead.

B. F. Krape, a lifelong resident of Nittany valley and a veteran of the Civil war, died at his home in Salona Friday afternoon about 5:30 o'clock, aged 69 years. Mr. Krape was a wagon-maker by trade and has followed that occupation in Salona since the close of the war, and was one of the town's most enterprising citizens. He is survived by one daughter, Mary, his wife having died a few months ago.

The funeral took place Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock from the house, the Rev. M. B. Bubb, pastor of the Salona Methodist church officiating. Interment was made at Cedar Hill.

He was a member of the Glee Clubs of these two institutions throughout his school life and a member of the college debating team for two years, helping to win three intercollegiate debates for his Alma Mater. As a scholar he distinguished himself especially as a linguist, winning the Juniata gold prize in Ancient and Modern Greek. He will follow the profession of teaching.

Fell Down Steps

Miss Alice Gallagher fell down stairs at her home on Pine street Tuesday evening and sustained severe injuries. About 10 o'clock she started upstairs for bed but did not carry a light with her. In the hallway of the house there are two stairs, one leading to the bed room and one to the basement. As Miss Gallagher was feeling her way to the steps leading to the second floor she suddenly stepped off the landing and fell down the stairs leading to the basement. She was picked up helpless and a physician was hurriedly sent for. It was at first thought that her back was broken but an examination proved otherwise. From latest reports it is learned that her pains are greatly allayed and she is resting much easier.

Aged Man's Long Tramp

The Lock Haven Democrat of Tuesday says:

J. F. Meyer, an aged watchmaker of Madisonburg, Centre county, who is about 70 years of age, arrived in this city at 10 o'clock this forenoon, having walked the entire distance. Mr. Meyer is on his way to Williamsport to purchase jewelry and watch supplies. He left Madisonburg yesterday morning and stopped over night at the Judge Allison farm, Cedar Run. For a man of Mr. Meyer's age to take such a long tramp on such a hot day as was yesterday, is indeed a remarkable feat.

George W. Smith

George W. Smith a native of Port Matilda, and a prominent miller and highly respected citizen of Clearfield, died Thursday at his home in the latter place, after a protracted illness aged 72 years, 6 months and 11 days. He is survived by his wife, two sons and two daughters, viz: Albert P., John W., Mrs. Oscar Mitchell and Mrs. W. C. Miller, all of Clearfield. One brother, John, of Lawrence township, Clearfield county, and two sisters, Mrs. Robert Waring, of DuBois, and Mrs. John Whipp, of Bellefonte, also survive. The funeral took place Saturday afternoon.

Death of a Young Girl.

Marcella Cecila, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Miles Heaton, of Yarnell, died at the home of her parents last Wednesday after an illness of about a year with dropsy of the kidneys. Marcella was born at Yarnell on October 11, 1897, making her age 10 years, 8 months and 6 days. She was a member of the United Brethren church at Yarnell and also a faithful scholar in the Sunday school. She was one of the two bright and interesting daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Heaton and will be very much missed by the father and mother and the sister, Lucetta.

The funeral was held Saturday morning at ½ 30 o'clock, services being conducted in the Advent church. Rev. Piper, pastor of the Methodist church at Milesburg, officiated and was assisted by Rev. Stewart of the United Brethern church. Interment was made in the Advent cemetery.

Six of her young girl friends acted as pall bearers at the funeral. A beautiful floral tribute was sent by her Sunday school teacher, Miss Bessie Miles of Milesburg and another by Miss Zelda Derr, of the same place.

Reception at the Methodist Parsonage.

A very pleasant home-coming reception and also wedding anniversary was enjoyed at the Methodist parsonage Monday evening by the members of that congregation. Mrs. Stein, wife of the pastor, Rev. James B. Stein, D. D., with the children had been enjoying a visit at her former home in Carlisle and had informed her husband that she would return home Monday evening. Sunday, June 21 was the twentieth anniversary of their marriage and it was accordingly planned to give Mrs. Stein a little surprise upon this occasion as well as her home coming. To properly celebrate the occasion a large number of the members assembled at the parsonage in the evening where a most enjoyable time was spent. Too add to the pleasure cool, refreshing beverages and ice cream were served to the guests who, departing, wished Rev. and Mrs. Stein many more years of happy married life.

Delivering on Big City Style.

The American Express company will hereafter do business in this place with a rush. This week R. P. Miller, who had charge of the delivery and collecting department, resigned and the agent, W. H. Miller, in looking about for his successor has secured John Porter Lyon to look after that important part of the express business. Mr. Lyon made the first delivery this morning and the train was hardly in at the Central railroad station until he was spinning around town with his auto laden with packages and in a short time the work of delivery was completed. Mr. Miller was with him and stated that the delivering could be done with a great deal more dispatch than with the horse and wagon: Persons having express matter to ship can call either the office at the Central railroad station or Mr. Lyon at the garage and the collection will be made promptly.

Mrs. George Schull.

A very sudden death occurred at Houserville Tuesday night when Lydia wife of George Schull passed away. Mrs. Schull's illness was very brief, she being sick only a few hours, and her death was due to heart failure. The deceased was a member of the German Reformed church and a woman highly esteemed in social and church circles. She was aged about [illegible] years.

Mrs. Schull was a sister of A. Y. Wagner, of this place, and one brother, David Waner of Houserville, also survives. With her husband the following children mourn the loss of a devoted mother: Mrs. George Tibbens and Elmer Schull, of Axe Mann; Mrs. Charles Miller, of Coleville; and Mrs. Clement Dale, of Houserville.

Funeral services were held Saturday forenoon at 10 o'clock, and Rev. A. A. Black officiated. Interment was made in the Shiloh cemetery.

Robbed the Good Samaritan.

Two Syrians met on the train near Huntingdon the other day. One of them was a poor man and the other had lots of money. The one with the money knowing that his brother was in need provided him with enough of coin to supply his needs until he reached his friends. After playing the part of the good Samaritan, the well-to-do Syrian turned over in the seat and went to sleep, and while he slept the man who was helped robbed his benefactor of about $79.00. However, before he could get away with his spoils the robbery was discovered and when they reached Huntingdon the thief was arrested and is now languishing in the borough bastile.

State to Buy Armory.

A report from Harrisburg states that the armory board has decided to buy the armory of Company B and make it the property of the state. The armory was built a number of years ago by Col. W. Fred Reynolds at a cost of $30,000 and the state now has a chance to purchase it for $20,000. It is the intention to make some repairs to it.
